HAT WE ARE WORTH

UNDER DIVERSE CIRCUMSTANCES.

An Interview with Mr. Hardeman, of the Comptroller's Office, in Regard to the Taxable Values of the State—The Necessity for Improved Assessments.

We present below some startling facts at should command the instant attention very tax-payer in the state of Georgia. We printed in yesterday morning's Con tion the text of a bill introduced in enate by Senator Westbrook for the ose of enforcing a tax assessment in the of Georgia. We gave the entire text of this bill because we believed it was the most important measure that has been introduced during the present session, one that may bear more directly than any other upon the tax payers of the state. We confess, however, that we had little idea of the real meaning and scope of this bill until we had the following interview with Colonel Robt Hardeman, of the comptroller general's office. Colonel Hardeman has for years had direct charge of the tax books, under direction of the comptroller general, and is more thoroughly acquainted with the details of the returns than any other man in the state. We print this interview herewith, and call the attention of every citizen, especially of every editor in the state, to the assertions that he makes, and facts that he brings forth:

A representative of THE CONSTITUTION asked Colonel Bob Hardeman if he had read Senator Westbrook's bill on the tax assessment, and if so, what he thought of it. Colonel Hardeman replied:

"I have read the bill carefully, and it is exactly the bill Georgia needs and has needed for years. I am positive in the belief, and I can establish the same before any committee of intelligent men, that the passage of this bill would increase the assessment throughout the state fully one-third and reduce the rate of tax from three mills to two."

"What are your reasons for this belief?"

"They are these: Take the city of Atlanta as an example. There is a board of assessors for the city assessment, but none for the state assessment. The consequence is that the city of Atlanta alone returns to the city assessors nearly two million dollars more than the entire county of Fulton returns to the state tax receivers. This shows the difference in one county. I am satisfied that the board of assessors in Atlanta alone, assessing the property at the proper value, has put on city property alone three millions and a half more value than it is returned to the state. This proportion would probably be larger throughout the state."

"Have any tests been made in the rural counties?"

"Yes. Under the present law the grand jury can overlook the tax receivers' returns, and where any are found to be palpably too low they have the right to amend such returns. I notice that wherever they take hold of a return they add from thirty-three to sixty per cent. to such return; and the decision usually stands before the board of arbitrators."

"Why, then, will not this system of grand jury espionage do the work intended to be done by the bill?"

"For the simple reason that you will never find the grand jury that is willing to uproot the whole system of county returns. There are always reasons that prevent them from attacking any her except the most flagrant. If this board of qualization was established in every county, and the list of questions proposed by the bill were put to every citizen and he knew that his answer to these questions made under oath would be reviewed by a board of his neighbors who know the value of his property he would be very certain to put it at a fair valuation. I am firmly convinced that under this law at least seventy five per cent of the returns now made would be lifted by the makers to higher figures than at present and that the total assessment of property would be twenty-five to forty per cent higher than it now is."

"To put it in figures, what do you think would be the result?"

"The total assessed value of property in Georgia for the last year was $2.8,000,000. The natural increase for the present year will be from eleven to fifteen millions. This represents the natural growth and progress of the state, and will carry the assessment something over $25,000,000. If Senator Westbrook's bill can be applied to the returns of the present year I am satisfied that the total will be over $300,000,000. Upon the return of this total the rate of taxation might be reduced one-third and the income still be sufficient to run the state and meet its obligations."

"What objection can there be to this bill?"

"None whatever that I can see, except from men who do not return their property at its honest value, and are afraid that under this bill they will be forced to do so. Every man who gives in his property at its honest value is interested in seeing that every other man does the same thing. Every dollar that his neighbor [illegible] from the true value of his property puts [illegible] just burden on the shoulders of the m[illegible] makes a fair return. There is no obligat[illegible] a state owes to its citizens so im[illegible] as to make the burden of taxation fall equ[illegible] on every man's shoulders. No laws or system of laws can do this if the returns of the value of property are not equalized. The same rate of taxation put on a man who returns his property at its full value, and the man who returns it at a false value puts a premium on dishonesty and lays a double burden on the man who is honest, while it lightens the load of the man who is dishonest. A board of equalization would settle this thoroughly, bring every piece of property to a fair and uniform standard of valuation and each man would then carry his own share of the burdens of taxation."

"You are honest, then, in the belief that the bill would pass?"

"I was never more certain of anything in my [illegible] If twenty members of the legislature could work upon the tax books of this state one month and see the injustice and inequality of the returns made and the inefficiency of the law to reach and correct these abuses, they would leave this room with nineteen out of twenty, or the entire number, convinced of the necessity for some such bill as Senator Westbrook has proposed."

"There are no objectionable features to the bill?"

"None that I can see. It makes no innovation on the system of tax returns and tax gathering. It merely provides for a more stringent and searching set of inquiries made by the state to the tax payer and for the review of his answers to the same by a board of experts appointed for that especial purpose. The salary of these experts is merely nominal, being simply the pay of grand jurors during the time that they are engaged in the service of the state. As I said before, I don't see how any man could object to the passage of this bill, unless it is one who returns his property at too low a value, and is afraid that he will be forced to raise it and pay his equal and equitable share of the burdens of the state."

A TALK WITH GENERAL THOMAS

Upon the Progress and Advantages of the South.

Last Thursday General Samuel Thomas, senior member of the firm of Thomas & Co., who are largely interested in the railroad enterprises of Colonel Cole, came to the city to confer with Colonel Cole and Major McCracken, his partners, about the construction of the line from Macon to Atlanta and from Atlanta to Rome. General Thomas is a young man, and one of the most successful business men in Ohio—very quiet, and with a head full of brains. He went to work so quietly that very few men knew he was in the city, and although he spent Thursday, Friday and Saturday here and around Atlanta inspecting the grounds and examining the contracts for work, and the various details connected with the construction of the roads he is interested in, even the newspaper men did not find out that we had such a distinguished visitor. General Thomas has been and is now connected with some of the most important railroad lines in the west, and has given much of his time and attention to the development of the iron and coal interests in his state. He is a very wealthy man and as success in business, as in everything else, is the true test of merit, we hunted him up to see if we could get something from him for the public about his business here.

We found him at work in the company's office with Maj. McCracken examining a pile of papers, railroad maps, profiles, etc. It is wonderful to see what a variety of maps Major McCracken has accumulated since he came to Georgia a few months since. He has maps commencing with the land survey of Cherokee Georgia, when the Indians left the state, down to the intricate maps of General Sherman, and you can get in his office almost a bird's eye view of the state from Macon to Rome.

After stating our desire to interview the general he quietly looked up from his papers and said:

"I am not much on talk; I believe in work, but I have no objections to a few pointed questions."

"How are you pleased with your trip to Georgia, general?" we asked.

"Very much indeed, sir. This is my first visit to Georgia, and I think it is a splendid state. I consider the Piedmont region one of the richest in undeveloped resources in the United States, and Atlanta one of the most progressive cities in America. I have been peculiarly struck with the healthfulness of your climate and the pure water. The timber, coal and iron, copper, gold, and other minerals, in north Georgia is wonderful. I have been looking into this lately, and I [illegible] no more inviting field for capital and labor [illegible]merica than this part of Georgia."

"[illegible] are very much cheered up here, general, [illegible] fact that northern capitalist, are beginning to find out what you have discovered. Do you think that it will be followed up?"

"I do," replied General Thomas. "The railroads are always the advance guards of heavy investments and immigration. When our lines are finished others will be built, and as they progress men who have money will seek investments in your state; and people who want homes will come here from the north, west, and from Europe to locate. Your land will enhance in value, and every mine in Georgia that is not paying a cent now, that will pay to work, will be developed, and Georgia will be the richest state in the union. THE CONSTITUTION," continued the general, "has been the means of waking up the people of the north to this fine field for investment. It has made for your paper a national reputation, because when the subject was investigated on suggestions made in your paper, we found that only an outline had been given. Atlanta is to-day the best advertised place I know of, and it deserves to be. Politics has clouded the south since the war, and this fact explains why the progress I predict has not been accomplished sooner. It was unreasonable to expect that old men who had bitterness enough to create a civil war would at once forget the differences that led to the war. The young men north and south will strike hands in the commencement of another centennial. They will forget the past, and look only to the future—will lock their shields together for the good of the whole country, and political issues that may arise will not affect the result. This is bound to be a good government, whether we have a high tariff or a low tariff, hard money or soft money. As long as the people work, obey the law, educate the masses, it will continue to expand, and be the wonder of the world. The sectional differences are fast disappearing, and this will be better for both sides."

General Thomas left yesterday, returning home. He will be here again in a short time, and during the winter will be a frequent visitor. We think we have anchored Major McCracken in Georgia for good; that is, we hope we have. Now, if we could make a citizen of General Thomas, we could build a railroad any time we wanted to.

TWO TRAGEDIES

Reported from Tennessee.

CINCINNATI, August 6.—A special dispatch says that Bob Osborne and his son Tom shot and wounded Frank Pate and his son Willis in Wearsy county, Tennessee, on July 11. Yesterday as Bob and Tom Osborne were returning home from McKenzie, Carroll county, they were ambushed and shot dead, being riddled with buckshot.

Another special says that in Tracy City, Grundy county, Tennessee, last night, there was a riot among miners, in which Thomas McGovern was shot dead by Taylor Street, and Street himself was mortally stabbed.

The President's Condition.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—8:30 a.m.—The president has passed an excellent night, sleeping sweetly the greater part of the time without the aid of morphia or any other anodyne. This morning he is cheerful, and all indications promise another favorable day. Pulse, 92; temperature, 98.4; respiration, 18.

D W BLISS, J K BARNES,
J J WOODWARD, ROBERT REYBURN,
F. H. HAMILTON.

7:00 p.m.—The president passed a comfortable morning, his symptoms and general condition being quite satisfactory. At 12:30 p.m. his pulse was 100, temperature 99.5, respiration 19. During the afternoon he complained somewhat of the weather, the external heat being such that it was found impracticable to keep the temperature of his room much below 90 without closing the windows and doors, which was not thought prudent. The afternoon rise of temperature began as late as yesterday, but has been higher, though unaccompanied by dryness of skin. At seven p.m. his pulse was 102, temperature 101.8, respiration 19. The appearance of the wound at the evening dressing was, however, good, and there has been no interruption of the flow of pus.

D. W. BLISS, J. K. BARNES,
J. J. WOODWARD, ROBERT REYBURN,
F. H. HAMILTON.

11:30 p.m.—Up to about 5 o'clock this afternoon the president had a very satisfactory day, although the extreme heat of the weather caused him a good deal of discomfort, and acted to some extent unfavorably upon his general condition. On account of the strong, hot wind from the south it was found impossible, even at the full working capacity of the refrigerating machines, to keep the temperature of the patient's room down without closing the doors and windows, and this it was not thought prudent to do. Cold air enough was furnished by the machine, but instead of filling the room and crowding out the heated air as it had heretofore done on warm days, the cold air itself was swept away almost as fast as it came from the pipes by the hot south wind which blew through the mansion. Thermometer in the patient's room therefore, for the first time in several weeks ranged from 85 to 90. This temperature of course operated to the president's disadvantage in his present weak condition and his afternoon fever was higher than usual. There was no indication, however, of any other cause for increased febrile rise. The discharge of pus at the evening dressing [illegible] satisfactory. There were no symptoms [illegible], and, with the single exception, [illegible] temperature, the condition of [illegible] quite as good as [illegible] the evening. The [illegible] pulse [illegible] normal. [illegible] weather has grown [illegible] rain, there is every probab[illegible] a good night.

The Land Bill in the House of Lords.

LONDON, August 6.—In the house of lords yesterday, in committee, the consideration of clause 7 of the land bill was resumed.

Lord Salisbury, conservative, moved that in any proceedings under the act, rent of small holdings should not be reduced on account of any sum paid by the tenant or his predecessors on coming into a holding.

Lord Salisbury said he had assented to several readings of the bill in hope that this amendment would be accepted. The government opposed the amendment. Many conservatives and also whigs asked Lord Salisbury not to press the amendment, which was, however, carried by a vote of 157 to 110. It will be observed that the amendment apparently aims to prevent the carving of a tenant's interest out of a landlord's estate. Several other amendments were carried, and the bill then passed through the committees.

The Pall Mall Gazette this evening says: The land bill, as it returns from the house of lords, is maimed and impaired, and it is absolutely essential for the sake of England and Ireland and the liberals and conservatives, that the measure which the government will be called upon to carry out, should be the measure they have recommended, and not a scheme by men who disapprove of the very principles on which it rests.

Mr. Bradlaugh's Seat.

LONDON, August 7.—A deputation from the liberal club waited on Sir Charles Dilke, under foreign secretary, to request him to vote for the motion of which Mr. Labouchere, advanced liberal, has given notice, to rescind the resolutions prohibiting Mr. Bradlaugh from taking his seat in the house of commons. Sir Charles Dilke replied that there would be a cabinet council to-day at which future steps in regard to Mr. Bradlaugh would be considered, but he believed that no attempt would be made this session to alter the parliamentary oaths law. If Mr. Labouchere's motion is brought forward, which is not likely, he would vote for it.

Mexican News.

CITY OF MEXICO, August 6.—The newspapers propose free importation of foreign flour in consequence of the scantiness of it and the high price of bread in some parts of the country.

The city council of Campeachy have adopted a resolution of thanks to President Gonzales for having ordered the establishment of docks and workshops for naval construction there.

There will arrive here to-day $1,50,000 in silver from Zacatecas, San Luis and Guanajuato.

The steamer Nanitia arrived at Vera Cruz yesterday from New York with 47 passengers.

Two Men Killed.

PETERSBURG, Va., August 6.—A quarrel yesterday between John W. Green, of the firm of Walton & Green, and William Lee, of Littleton, North Carolina, resulted in the killing of both men. Lee cut Green's throat in three places, and Green shot Lee in the shoulder, the ball lodging in his back.

North Carolina's Negative.

WILMINGTON, N. C., August 6.—The election returns continue very unfavorable to the prohibitionists. Every county thus far heard from gives a majority against prohibition. The Star has received specials from nearly every section of the state, and estimate the majority against prohibition at 50,000 to 60,000.

Reducing the Star Routes.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Second Assistant Postmaster General Elmer reports a net reduction in the star route and steamboat mail service during the month of July, amounting to $316,164, and that the total amount of savings by the reductions and discontinuances since March the 4th, is $1,381,442.

Admits Exaggeration.

MADRID, August 6.—The El Liberal, newspaper, says the Spanish consul at Tunis having investigated the circumstances of the capture of Sfax, admits that the vice consul acting on the spur of the moment unintentionally exaggerated the misconduct of the French troops.

Freight Rates.

NEW YORK, August 6.—Commissioner Albert Fink sends the press the following announcement regarding freight rates: "Rates on west bound business, from New York to Chicago, will be $45, $33, $61 and $18 commencing to-day, and on this basis to other cities."

Five New Bales.

COLUMBUS, Ga., August 6.—Five bales of new cotton were received here yesterday from Georgia, Alabama and Florida.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

IT is said that Councilman Lit Jones, and Alderman John B. Goodwin will be the candidates for mayor next year.

THERE are twenty-six men, by actual count, lying alongside the buildings from the Broad street bridge to Austell & Mangum's corner. And yet the railroads pay $1.10 for labor.

SOME one asked Dr. John M. Johnson how he felt, and he replied: "I feel like I had swallowed a music box and it was playing at full tilt right under my heart, and all its music was roses."

THERE were over one hundred and fifty copies of the North American Review containing the discussion between Bob Ingersoll and Judge Jere S. Black, on the Christian religion, sold in Atlanta. The edition of the Review was quickly exhausted, and a new edition is now in press.

THE FANCY STOCK

GRAZING AT CLASSIC BELLE MEADE.

A Lively Party of Georgians Turned Loose in a Tennessean Paradise, Where They Admire the Beauties of the Animal Creation.

ATLANTA, August 4.—It was a snug party of twenty-one—legislators, lawyers and journalists—taking advantage of a non-session Saturday—off, on a spin to the home of the Bonnie Scotland horses—Belle Meade, the most famous breeding farm for thoroughbreds in this country.

It is useless to dwell upon the points of the trip itself. Suffice it to say that it was taken under the leadership of Major Joe Lockhart and on invitation of General Wm. H. Jackson, of Belle Meade—that these gentlemen from first to last were hospitable in the large-handed and old-fashioned way. I cannot forbear regretting that one of the horses driven by Hon. D. C. Bacon, Judge Twiggs and Mr. E. P. Howell dropped dead just before he reached the Belle Meade gates—that the Hon. Arthur Gray had to leave the party at Chattanooga and return to Nashville to bid his cousin good-bye—and that Mr. Boykin Wright, owing to an unexpected engagement, came very near being left at the Stanton house. But with these regrets, let us close the personal reminiscences, and get at the sights we saw.

Belle Meade farm is the estate of General W. G. Harding, the oldest living turfman, than whom no man has done more to uphold the honor of the American turf and establish the excellence of the American thoroughbred. The estate consists of about 3,500 acres, and every acre of it is worth $80 to $100, that price having been given for land all around it. This land, worth over a quarter of a million, is devoted to the raising of thoroughbred horses.

It was here that the Bonnie Scotland horses, so famous on the turf for the past ten years, were bred. The old stallion died at his stables here last year, while his sons and daughters were waking the world to applause with their performances on the turf. Here were bred from the loins of this horse, Bramble, the truest racer ever known in America; Luke Blackburn, who has run more races to his age than any horse that ever ran; Belle of the Meade, Ben Hill, Brooklyn, Brambaletta, Bombast, Bushwhacker, Banter, and the whole swarm of flying "B's" that have made the bright color, the long form and the pretty heads of the "Scotlands," so familiar on all race courses.

Anticipating the death of Bonnie Scotland, about two years ago, General Jackson (who is the son-in-law of General Harding, and has active management of the farm) sent to Lord Falmouth, in England, for the best of the King Tom horses, holding that this was the best strain on the British isles. Lord F. selected Great Tom, a brilliant racer and of perfect qualities, and offered him for $8,000 in gold. He cost over $10,000 when delivered, and was the most important importation made in years. Upon his arrival at New York, the leading journals sent their best writers aboard the ship to meet him, and columns were written about his appearance. Not satisfied with this, General Jackson paid $10,000 for Enquirer, a famous sire, for which he has since refused $20,000. He has also purchased Bramble, the best son of "Scotland," and retired him from the turf. These three horses which he would not sell for $50,000, make up his list of stallions. He has about fifty brood mares, selected with the greatest care, and each of them with pedigrees running through a line of ancestors longer and more illustrious than is boasted by a prince of royal blood. Born of racers, racers themselves, and mated to racers, they cannot well bring anything but racers. It is safe to say that $50,000 would not buy these brood mares, and that they cost $30,000.

And now as to the colts. There are about forty colts dropped annually. They are put in paddocks with their dams and allowed to run for one year. At the end of that time, they are brought up for sale. The place at which they are sold is a rectangle of stalls or boxes. This rectangle, which is about 200 by 200 feet, is open in the center. Around this center above the rows of boxes, seats are arranged for the customers. The annual sale usually takes place about April, and is attended by turfmen from all parts of America. The colts are placed in their boxes and numbered, and a printed catalogue gives the history of each colt—by his number and his pedigree. When the crowd is assembled the yearlings are brought out one at a time, and offered at auction. This sale is the great event of the year in turf circles.

And now as to the prices. Last year about 35 yearling colts were sold, and averaged $530 each. This year 38 were sold, and averaged $1,115 each. [illegible] of this! An average of $1,115 paid for 38 [illegible] year old. [illegible] Mr. Doak, of the [illegible] ever sold even [illegible] at so high an average. The [illegible] at the queen's royal stables this year averaged less than $1,000 on a much less number of colts. This Tennessee farm therefore stands confessed as the first in the world in the average price of its colts.

"And I will show you, here," said Major Lockhart, "the yearling colt that brought the highest price ever paid for a yearling in America, and with one exception, in the world. You are looking at history when you look at this colt."

The groom went to a bay—(the colts sold at the April sales are left in their boxes until fall)—and led out a superb youngster, full of fire and spirit, but moving with the slouching dignity of a veteran.

"He's very much like Blackburn," exclaimed Judge Twiggs.

"That's exactly why he brought such an enormous price," said General Jackson. "He is a full brother of Blackburn and that made him greatly in demand."

Queer, aint it? A colt sired by Bonnie Scotland out of Nevada, the Lexington mare, the dam and sire of Blackburn, and looking something like Blackburn, brings $7,500, while just as good a colt, though lacking this illustrious kinship, goes down at $500. Blood will tell.

"Here is the sister of Glidelia, who you know was a famous racer," said General Jackson," and she brought $5,000. She is by Scotland out of Waltz, also a Lexington mare, and they were the dam and sire of Glidelia. This colt, being a sister of that flyer, brought $5,000. Of course purchases made at these high figures because of close kinship to very successful racers, is more or less a venture. But we have found that Bonnie Scotland always gets a swift and staying racer out of a Lexington mare. Another reason for the high prices of the colts sold this year is that they are the last of the Bonnie Scotlands. The old horse died last year, and these colts make the last of his line. He has brought so many brilliant winners that there was a rush for his last colts. He has left some fine youngsters, and they will be apt to keep his colors to the front on the turf for some years to come."

The Great Tom colts were offered for sale the first time this year. He brought up twelve colts of his first year's get—and noble looking fellows they are. As it was his first season, he was bred to the best mares, including Ivy Leaf and Melrose, the dams of Bramble and Ben Hill, and the colts are strong rangy youngsters, fashioned mostly in the immense mould of their sire, who is one of the largest stallions in America. Their qualities on the turf are not known, as they have never run yet, but they brought high prices. One of them—Talleyrand—a splendid fellow, brought $2,000, going to Major Tom O'Connor. There will be no event of the next year more interesting than the first races of the sons and daughters of Great Tom, and if they do well, and the English stallion proves a fit successor of Bonnie Scotland, the Belle Meade sales will be even more remarkable in the future than the past.

The Georgia legislature—or such part of it as was present—dissented from the theory that because a colt is the brother or sister of a good colt, they must, perforce, have excellence, and it was determined to choose two colts to represent the horse-sense of the legislature on the turf next year.

Hon. Davenport Jackson, one of the committee on selection, chose Bondholder, a bright son of Scotland, that sold for $2,100, and certainly looked worth it.

Mr. Speaker Bacon, the other committeeman, chose Talleyrand, a big-boned son of Great Tom, that is the property, as before stated, of Major Tom O'Connor.

These two horses, then—Bondholder and Talleyrand—will bear the colors of the Georgia legislature against the fortuitous brother of Blackburn, and the casual sister of Glidelia, on the turf next spring. Their records will be looked for with the greatest interest, Hons. Wellborn Hill and Fleming DuBignon having been appointed to follow the racing circuit of 1882 and keep the score.

Just here let me interpolate a reference to the purchasers of the "Brother of Blackburn"—the Dwyers. If there ever was a pair of lucky butchers, here it is. The Dwyers for years slaughtered cattle for the New York markets, and concluded to try horse raising as an incident. They have both made fortunes, and the other day the London News alluded to them as the "best judges of horse-flesh in the United States." Their record certainly justifies this praise. They bought Bramble for $380; made over $80,000 out of him, and then sold him back to Belle Meade for more thousands than they had paid hundreds. One summer Bramble was entered in six cup races, the best horses in the country being against him. The Dwyers bet $1,000 to $10,000 that he would win every cup, and he did. They bought Blackburn for a trifle, as a yearling, and won more races with him than any horse ever won up to his four-year form. He won twenty-four races out of twenty-six one season. Now that he is said to have failed, their colors are carried to the front by Hindoo, the best horse of the season, and Ripple, who is about as good. The Lorillards, who are the aristocratic turfmen of the north, have been very restless over the continued triumph of the sturdy butchers, and have tried for years to beat them, but have never been able to do it.

In a race made up for three-fourths of a mile, for two-year-olds, with $5,000 up, the Dwyers and Lorillard each picked their best colts, and the butchers beat them after a close pull. They are now rich and prosperous, and swear by the Bonnie Scotlands. They have great hopes of their new purchase.

It will be noticed that 38 yearlings, at an average of $1,115 each, makes over $40,000 for the year's breeding. But there are now running in the paddocks and meadows of Belle Meade, 42 colts, dropped this spring, that $1,000 each would not buy. These will be yearlings next April and will then be offered for sale. The colts of Enquirer will then be offered for the first time to the public. They will supply the place of old Scotland's colts, but it is doubtful if we shall soon see such a sire as he was. He died 27 years of age, and two colts of his last season, brought $7,500 and $5,000, when one year old. Did any king ever beget such princes?

Thoroughbred horses do not make up the total of the products of Belle Meade. Cotswold and Merino sheep are raised in large quantities. Imported shepherd dogs and Scotch greyhounds are bred and sold, and there are the finest of cattle of several breeds. Last year General Jackson imported a drove of Shetland ponies of the very purest blood, consisting of 12 mares and 2 stallions. These little fellows are different from the ordinary Shetlands seen in circuses, being hardly larger than Newfoundland dogs. They are hardy, gentle and strong, and sell readily at from $150 to $200. The first colts will be offered next year. Master Willie Jackson, a youngster of eight, and a thoroughbred himself, dashed about the farm in true cavalier style, on the bare back of one of these ponies with no more danger than if he had been riding a big dog. There is raised on the Belle Meade more corn, hay, wheat, etc, than can be used, and large quantities are sold annually. The profits of the farm proper pay the expenses of running everything, and the income from sales is about clear profit. A commission of Frenchmen, sent out by the French government reported officially, that nowhere in England or America, did they find a farm on which the thoroughbred horse was bred with so much judgment and success as at Belle Meade.

One of the most attractive sights on the farm is the deer park. This is an enclosure of nearly 1,000 acres, covered with the incomparable blue grass, and shaded by groves of primitive oaks. In the park are not less than 500 deer. Our party of visitors were stationed on an eminence in the park, in carriages, and men sent out to drive the deer past us. The sun was beating through the arching trees, and powdering the grass with gold—through the long vistas of alternate dusk and brilliancy, there could be seen here and there a Jersey cow or a deer. The scene was bewitching in its beauty, and Major Bacon and Judge Tompkins pronounced it equal to the forests of Fontainebleau or Windsor.

"S-s-h! Here they come!"

Way off through the trees, could be seen a score of dark brown forms, moving rapidly toward where we were sitting.

"Keep quiet now!" said General Jackson, "till they get near us, and then we'll whoop them up!"

On they came, the antlered bucks in front, and the graceful does close behind, hundreds in number, flying as lightly and swiftly as the wind. Beyond the deer the grooms came plunging on their horses. Surely a prettier sight was never seen, and it quickened the pulses of every man who saw it. As the brown squadrons, skimming over the sward, reached a point about one hundred yards from us, the foremost buck—a superb creature he was—halted, crouched in the grass for an instant, his antlers barely showing—then rose, a mere flash of brown color, and was off to the leftwards on the wings of the wind. Half the drove followed him, but the other wing wheeled slightly to the right. Just as they were fairly separated a little fawn, hardly bigger than a rabbit, discovered that he was in the wrong crowd and made a break for the other, crossing right in front of our party. He evidently felt that he had business on hand, and leaped in and out of the [illegible] as rapidly as the eye could follow.

[illegible] was more than the Hon. William A. Harris [illegible]

[illegible] e" remarked he, in a Worth [illegible] that made the old oaks [illegible] fawn out of its boots. [illegible] the deer vanished. [illegible] before—but they [illegible] gia yell o[illegible] and then they melted out of [illegible]

Away off down the slope [illegible] under the influence of the W[illegible] that had so pervaded the air he could [illegible] what direction it came from. Here he is. sixty yards!

"Bang! bang!" from the guns of Hon. Mitt Reese and Senator Reid. The buck halts an instant, and is off again unhurt.

"Bang! bang!" from Mr. Cunningham, of Savannah, and Speaker Bacon. A few leaves sprinkled down from a neighboring tree.

"Bang! bang!" from Colonel E. P. Howell and Reese Crawford. A cow on an adjoining hill, sprang into the air, and flew off madly.

"Bang! bang!" from Hon. Arthur Gray (and his cousin) and Mr. Davenport Jackson, and still the deer sped on without a bobble.

By this time he had passed our stand and was rapidly vanishing. Messrs. Tompkins and Patterson had fired ineffectual shots, when the writer of this carelessly stepped to the front. He raised his gun quickly, closed his cross eye, and dropped the good one along the barrel. There was a flash, the deer stopped suddenly as if he had been transfixed, leaped into the air, and fell dead [Cheers and cries of "go on!" go on!"]

But it is fit that this screed should close with the tragedy recorded above. As I write these words my eyes fall on Deerslayer, my faithful gun, across the muzzle of which is suspended a noble pair of antlers, and the sight stirs the turbulent hunter's blood in my veins, and stills the softer impulses of the scribe! ## BILL ARP'S VIEWS.

WHAT HE THINKS OF AFFAIRS.

The Streak of Original Sin that Makes People Envious of One Another—Fashionable Dinings and Incessant Worriment—A Day in the Legislature.

Written for The Constitution.

There is a power of comfort in meeting with a happy-hearted man, and especially a woman. When I go to Atlanta most everybody is too busy to talk long, and by the time they get through asking about the crops and when I came down and when I'm going back, the interview is about over, and I move on with my organ. But I know some genial spirits who make me feel at home and cheer me up and are always bright and happy. I love em, and sometimes I think that if I was in heaven and an angel was to come and tell me that one of em was dead and was a knocking at the golden gate I would run or fly to meet him and give a welcome. I was talking to one of em the other day about life and how to live and says he, "you are right, sir—you are right. It is as true as the gospel. I know all about it. I've been through fire and brimstone since the war. I've been roasted in a crucible but a kind Providence has brought me out and purified me. I was born to luxury and a generous love of my people, but the infernal war swept away my foundations and I had to knuckle down to work—hard work. I have toiled all day long in the town and walked home, five miles, after my day's work was done, and then taken my cross cut and put my dear little boy at one end to balance it, and sawed the wood for next day. Sawed it in the dark when I couldn't see the lad across the log. I have plowed my little new ground with a steer, my shoes out at the toes and an old three story hat on my head, and by night I was so tired I would lay down in the corner of the fence and pant like a lizzard. Many a time I have wanted to be a child so that I could cry and not be ashamed, for I was not used to these things, and they went hard with me. But there was the dear wife and the little children, and I didn't dare to look back. Since then I have compared one year with another and it got better slowly, but surely better all the time, and now I am rich, thank God, for his mercies. I am rich, immensely rich, for my little home is paid for, and the fruits and flowers I planted are mine, and we have good health and decent clothes and plenty to eat and books to read and kind nabors, and all my salary meets our daily wants, and Vanderbilt has no more. The difference is that Vanderbilt doesn't know what he wants, but I do. Therefore, he buys a painting for a $100,000, or a thousand dollar carpet, and the poor fellow is miserable because his money won't buy peace and happiness.

"Now, I am raising my boys to be farmers, for it's the happiest life to live. I would rather they should make a hundred dollars clear at farming than a thousand at law or medicine, or ten thousand by speculation. It will do them more good and pay better in the long run. I would rather sit down to my own bread and butter and milk than the richest feast that money will buy."

That sort of talk suits me exactly. The truth is our people cook too much and eat too much. The trouble of having cooks and keeping em and always spreading a bountiful table of meats and sauces and puddings and pies is the curse of the domestic circle. When we owned the niggers and the little darkies was a hanging round the door in their shirt-tails waiting for the scraps and leavings it didn't matter how much was cooked, but it does now. Every family ought to make their own lightbread and prepare their own preserves and pickles and be always ready to entertain a friend with simple fare. These everlasting dinners with two or three courses seem mighty nice and hospitable, but the wear and tare and trouble of 'em is more than they are worth, and they will keep a poor man's nose to the grindstone all his life and leave his children poor when he dies. There is a pardonable pride mixed up with a little envy that keeps our people on a strain—a sort of a lemonade with whisky in it. Most everybody is envious more or less, for it's human nature. It began with Cain, and it looks like we can't help handing it on down. Good people are envious and they don't know it. The good wife wouldent hanker after a new carpet if Mrs. Nabor Jones dident have one. If one man is getting ahead of another it's very natural for us to want to catch him by the coat-tail and pull him back a little. If the drought burns up my crop I don't go off and weep because my nabors are in the same fix. There's a streak of original sin running down everybody's spine, but still we are all right clever and kind, and love our people, especially if they don't git ahead of us or keep just a little behind.

Well, I have been up about the capitol for a day or two—looking on and perusing the members on the floor and the ladies in the gallery. The ladies looked mighty [illegible] sweet, of course, but what is [illegible] to me. Well, I did see one [illegible] matronly woman up there, [illegible] half a dozen little [illegible] I could have [illegible] basking in the [illegible] are a goo[illegible] are doing [illegible] constituents [illegible] The watch-dogs of the [illegible] and noisy, and when [illegible] appropriation you can hear [illegible] half a mile. The trouble is [illegible] bill comes up a feller don't know w[illegible] his people are for it or agin it, and therefore he generally votes no. I think he ought to have time to go home and confer with his constituents on everything that comes up. Voting no is a mighty safe plan, for if the bill passes and turns out to be a good law nobody is going to be poking into the records to see how he voted, but if it proves to be a bad law he can swell and strut and say I voted against that bill and prove it by the record, and then the people will send him back again. It's a good plan to suspect every man who wants the legislature to do anything for him. The presumption is he's after some devilment. There is Mr. Price going round and talking sweet about the Dahlonega college. Now you see he is after money. He wants to build up Dahlonega, and what good is that going to do Rome or Gainesville? And the lunatic asylum wants a hundred thousand dollars and that won't help any town but Milledgeville. And there is a company who want to build a railroad from Gainesville—the Gainesville, Jefferson and Jug Tavern Pacific. Why that old tavern has been there for fifty years with its venerable signboard a swinging to the breeze—a jug on one side and entertainment for man and beast upon the other, and now they want to wipe out the old landmarks and John Branson swears it will ruin the country. Farewell, old sign; farewell broom sage; farewell jug. If these fellers keep on building railroads and putting up telegraph wires, I want to know where a poor devil can run to when the sheriff gets after him? And here is Mr. Cole wants a charter to build a road to Rome, and I thought of course they would just give it to him bolus noxious; but some say, it ought to go through Gordon and Murray and Walker, and John Branson wants it to stop at Kingston, so as to make Kingston a port of entry. Some say that Mr. Cole wants to kill the State road and then buy it and that John Branson is in cahoot with him. Some say it will damage Joe Brown, and some say there is a cat in the meal tub, or a mare's nest in the barn. Some say Mr. Cole don't intend to build a road at all, but wants to skeer up the lessees and buy their stock for a song. I am afraid Mr. Cole is a bad man. I thought Mr. Seney was a good man, but a feller told me that, in his opinion, Mr. Seney got on sprees, and every time he got on one he went to throwing away his money on Methodist colleges. He said he didn't know anything about him, but from the way he kept on a doing it looks like he spreed. Says he, "I got on a bender myself last Christmas and give an organ grinder five dollars."

Well, I am right sorry for Joe Brown if it's going to ruin him, but it's curious to me why Mr. Cole dident sell out his own stock before he begun to ruin the lease, for they say he and Joe Brown have got the same interest and all the other lessees live away up yonder, and I've been wondering why they dident come down and raise a fuss over this business.

But it's all nothing to me—that is, not much—and I reckon these law-makers will keep Mr. Cole from stealing my land and carrying off my wife and children to parts unknown.

I'm satisfied that John Branson will protect me and stand up like a bulwark for light and liberty. Solomon says: "In the multitude of counsel there is safety; and though you should bray a fool in a mortar with a pestle, yet will not his foolishness depart from him."

I'm going home to pull fodder. There's no law agin that I reckon. I come down to see what kind of a fence law they would pass and I find I was mistaken about everybody voting on it. Only freeholders can call for the election, but everybody can vote, white and black, land or no land, cattle or no cattle. A vagabond darkey who stops in the settlement to dig manganeese for a week or two, has got as big a vote as I have. Well, I reckon that if I was a member and wanted to come back again I would have fixed it that way too. May the good Lord help us all. BILL ARP.

THE ROME AND ATLANTA RAILWAY.

Hon. Alexander H. Stephens's Views.

Crawfordville Letter to Augusta Chronicle.

I inquired of Mr. Stephens what he thought of the proposed charter.

He promptly replied: "I am in favor of it. I am in favor of all charters for the building of railroads by men who will furnish the capital, where no monopolizing privileges are conferred upon them. The more railroads we have the better for the country and the general interests of the people."

Reporter—But, Mr. Stephens, do you not think a road from Atlanta to Rome would materially injure Sthe tate road? Indeed, I am told you were one of the main advocates and supporters of that road at the time it was chartered.

Mr. Stephens—I am in favor of the State road. When it was chartered in 1836 I considered it the greatest enterprise of the age, and still think so. But I do not think another road from Rome to Atlanta would injure it. It would not operate against the objects for which it was built. It was for the benefit of the people. That road was never intended to be a monopoly on the part of the state against the interests and welfare of her people. Its object was to benefit them. And if the interests of the people require another road alongside of it, though it may decrease the income of their road, their interest is of much higher importance than the profits of the road. As I said, I do not believe it would materially injure the business of the State road, but if it did, the interests of the people should prevail.

Reporter—But how about the interest of the lessees of the State road? Ought not their interest to be considered by the legislature in granting a competing charter?

Mr. Stephens—I think not. In the lease of the State road there is nothing said that I am aware of about the chartering of any competing line. There is no guaranty against it. None was sought; none was given. The legislature, therefore, is at perfect liberty to look upon the question solely with a view to the public interests, not only of the people of that section, but throughout the state.

Reporter—Suppose the charter of the Cole company is for the benefit of capitalists outside of the state, who may seek to monopolize through transportation from the west to the injury of other roads in the state?

Mr. Stephens—I do not see how that could be done, or, at least, I see no cause for fear from any such source. Under our railroad commission, rates of travel and freights on all roads in the state are regulated according to the laws of our state; and the more railroads we have connecting us with the great west and the sea (and without unfavorable discrimination against any road), the less fear there will be from "corners" or monopolists in any quarter.

AFTER LONG YEARS.

A Murderer Hanged After Nearly Six Years' Contest in the Courts.

SYRACUSE, August 6.—Nathan Orlando Greenfield who was executed Friday morning for the murder of his wife Alice, at Orwell, Owego county, October, 1875, had three trials, the jury once disagreeing and twice finding him guilty, and three death sentences and five stays and reprieves. Friday the formal execution took place, five years, nine months and six days after the crime. After so many escapes from the gallows, Greenfield was confident he would not be hanged, and gave up hope of commutation only when under the gallows. Vigorous efforts to gain the governor's interference were in vain. The execution took place in the jail in the presence of two hundred persons, officials, witnesses and press representatives. The prisoner was cool and unconcerned. Being asked if he had anything to say, he replied: "Nothing." The trap was sprung at 11 o'clock. A scene took place just before the execution. The prisoner's brother insisted on standing by him till the last, declaring him to be innocent. This the sheriff refused as unlawful. Greenfield had an affecting interview with his brother and cousin this morning, and assured them of his innocence and readiness to die. The chaplain of the prison held religious exercises and implored the prisoner to confess his guilt. He protested his innocence. In his cell he prayed fervently for God's mercy upon himself and his enemies and those who perjured themselves in his trials. "Thou knowest, oh God, that I am innocent," was his declaration. He went calmly to the scaffold, supported by the officers, who noticed no tremor or faltering. Under the gallows, asked by the sheriff if he had any confession or statement to make, he said, "I have none to make. As Christ is good, it is true I am innocent. I am heartily obliged to you for your kindness." Thirteen minutes after the trap fell he was pronounced dead. The body was taken by Oswego county friends.

IN HIS OLD AGE.

An Old Man Foully Murdered Near Lawrence.

[illegible]VILLE, Ky., August 6.—A Lawrence special to the Courier-Journal on the 16th of July [illegible] that Arthur Ingram, a [illegible] old man [illegible] years of age, who [illegible] and five grown children was [illegible] jail, ma[illegible] On the 16th [illegible] went to Van Buren, [illegible] county, and there met old man Ingram. They all took a drink. They went from there to [illegible] store, not very far away. There Grant bought a quart of whisky. Grant, Travis and Ingram drank freely of it, when the old man became drunk and boisterous. Grant and Travis took the old man's sack containing meal or flour he had bought, and each took hold of him to assist him home. When they had gotten near Ingram's house they called for some one to come and get him and his sack, when his daughter came out. Grant got over the fence and asked the old man to get over, when he refused to do so. Ingram reached over two or three times and took hold of Grant, using some harsh words to him, when Grant picked up a rock and knocked him away from him. He then secured a five-pound rock and struck the old man a severe blow, knocking him fifteen feet. Ingram's daughter was standing there all the time, crying and screaming to him to let her father alone. The last blow did the work, killing him, when Grant sat him against a tree and left.

The Irish Revolutionists.

CHICAGO, August 6.—The members of the Irish convention at the Palmer house are as reticent to-day as they have been ever since their presence was discovered by the reporters. O'Donovan Rossa is said to be represented by Dr. John O'Leary, the well-known revolutionary agitator, who has operated in Paris and other European cities, and who is trying to convince the assembly of the virtues of dynamite, while Stephenson, of the moderate wing of the revolutionary party, is under the leadership of Colonel Michael Boland, of Louisville, and Judge Brennon, of Sioux City, Iowa. W. J. Haynes, a Chicago lawyer of meager fame, is permanent chairman. It is said that 6,400 local bodies in the United States and Canada are represented. In default of positive information, those claiming to give accounts of the proceeding evidently drew largely on their imaginations. One thing, however, is certain, that if importance is implied by secrecy the work of this mysterious gathering must be momentous.

GEORGIA CROP NOTES.

FRUIT is a failure up about Cedartown.

RAINS have been general in Harris county.

OGLETHORPE county will make half a crop of corn.

JACKSON county farmers are satisfied with their crops.

G. W. DODSON has the finest cotton in Dade county.

THE cotton crop of Forsyth is unusually fruited this year.

DECATUR county will make corn enough for next year.

DRY weather will shorten the corn crop of Dade county.

THE rice crops in McIntosh county look remarkably well.

THE wheat crop of Oglethorpe county this year averaged six bushels per acre.

THE sweet potato crop of Oglethorpe county is being injured by bugs and disease.

MR. JOHN SHANK, of Wilkes county, will make thirty bushels of corn to the acre.

MANY farmers in Oglethorpe county are beginning to raise their own mules and horses.

FRUIT trees are so heavily loaded in some parts of Wilkes county they are breaking down.

OVER $5,000 worth of stock have died in Oglethorpe county this year from eating western corn.

CROPS are spotted in Oglethorpe county. In some localities corn and cotton are as fine as the land can grow.

WHAT THE PEOPLE ARE DOING.

A Mother Murders Her Child—An Atrocious Crime in Spalding—An Attempt to Murder a Lady—An Outrage in Lee County.

By Mail and Wire to the Constitution.

GRIFFIN, August 6.—A most atrocious crime was committed on Friday last by one Mitchell Woods, a colored moke whose wife lives on the place of Colonel E. W. Beck. Mitchel and his wife did not live in too great a state of conjugal felicity and he rarely saw her, except at intervals of about a month's duration. On the day in question he paid her his respects, but couldn't or wouldn't be kind, and consequently they quarreled. Not relishing her jaw, he proceeded to put a stop to it by stabbing her in the temple with a pair of scissors. The blades entered about three inches, causing insensibility. About this time Dick McLendon, father of the wounded woman, came in and remonstrated with Woods for his act, whereupon the son-in-law set upon the old man with the same scissors, stabbed him in the hollow of the left side and once more in the small of the back. Col. Beck and a brother went in the outhouse where the disturbance occurred and secured Mitchell. They would probably have kept him a prisoner, but Dick McLendon's wounds bled so profusely, one of them went into the house to get something to stop the pain, and while gone Woods bolted and made his escape. At first it was thought both parties were fatally stabbed, but up to this morning they were still alive. The would-be slayer has not been apprehended.——The city is much encouraged over the prospects for a lively fall trade the coming season. The crops are promising and the merchants' hopes are elevated as they have not been in years. We expect confidently to have 50,000 bales of cotton. The past season gave us nearly 40,000 bales.——At Dr. Collier's are Miss Rosa Woodson, one of Macon's loveliest daughters, Mrs. T. W. Mangham and family, of Macon; Mrs. A. W. Hammond, of Atlanta; Misses Lulah and Mary Hammond, of Atlanta; Miss Fannie Mangham, Macon. Miss Julia Daniel is visiting Mrs. G. J. Drake. Miss Lilla Cope has returned from Chalybeate springs, where she was the reigning belle for several weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Mills have also returned from Chalybeate. Miss Lillie Green left yesterday for Macon. Misses Pace and Rogers, who visited Mrs. E. A. Heard, have returned to their home in Covington. No two young ladies who have ever visited Griffin received so much attention or were so universally admired. Mrs E A. Heard is visiting her father's family near Covington. J. L. Bass, J. P. Nichols, J. I. Miller, W. A. Powell and several other Griffinites are doing Cumberland island. Mr. and Mrs. Seaton Grantland are at Narragansett Pier, Rhode Island. Miss Fanny Richardson is visiting Miss Ida Mitchell at Monroe, Georgia. Miss Tookie Lamar, of Americus, is the guest of Miss Sophie Richardson, on Solomon street.——Considerable interest is being shown over the opera house license, and a large amount of breath being wasted also.——Mrs. Dr. Johnson and Mrs. Dr. Caldwell, of Atlanta, are visiting Mrs. J. W. Little.——Base-ball still all the rage. The Lightfoots have several prospective games to play before the season closes—one with the Silex club, of Fairburn, and another with the Juniors, of Covington.

BARNESVILLE, July 7.—Mr. C C Holmes, with a spirit that is truly encouraging, has torn down his old frame building on the public square, and has laid the foundation for a handsome two-story brick building that will be an ornament to the town. Never having had a fire of any serious character Barnesville's business houses are nearly all old wooden buildings. Mr. Holmes's example, if followed, will soon give us a business looking front.——Plenty of rain around here.——Cotton is beginning to open.

EASTMAN, August 5.—The dwelling house of Mr. W. W. Ashburn, who is now and has been for some time with his family in North Carolina, has been broken into and a good many articles of clothing, etc., stolen. Yesterday a little negro girl about ten years of age was discovered in the house and said she was sent there by her mother, Susan Kellum, colored. They are both now in jail awaiting trial. The house was entered through a window.——Isaiah Richardson attempted to get out of jail yesterday by tearing up the floor and cesspool of the privy in the jail corridor, where he had been allowed to remain for a while, but was detected and put back in his cell before he accomplished his purpose.

What the Papers Say.

Oglethorpe Echo.

You can't get the negroes in this county to touch the Revised New Testament with a ten-foot pole. They think it a scheme concocted by the democrats to get all the darkies to hell, so that they won't have to associate with them in heaven on terms of evality.

Americus Recorder.

On the night of the 17th of July a white man and a colored man drove up to the house of A. C. Bell, Jr., of Lee county, and asked for water. Mr. Bell asked the name of the parties. These were not given, and Mr. Bell refused to give them water. One or more pistol shots were fired from the buggy into the house, a ball passing through the clothing of Mrs. Bell. Lee Sanford, who has been identified as the colored party in the buggy, was arrested in Americus, Wednesday, by Mr. T. R. Stewart, the deputy-sheriff of Lee.

Athens Banner.

Coon Daniel has a strange bird on Jackson street which some one in Jackson county sent to him. It is called a water turkey, but we suppose that is hardly the correct name. It has a long suple neck like a crane, with a slim pointed bill and snake-like eyes, feet like a duck and tail and wings like a turkey. It is evidently a salt water fowl and must have been blown up to this region by some recent storm. It was shot in the wing in Jackson, so that it cannot fly, but is otherwise all right and is perfectly tame. It will devour fish [illegible] food in large quantities. It is a [illegible] but we suppose it will not live [illegible] out of its native element.

Washington Gazette.

[illegible] of toil and hard work. Thus in a night his savings for [illegible] swept away. We regret very [illegible] learn this fact. Mr. Slater was away on [illegible] river the night the fire occurred. It is supposed to be the work of an incendiary. This fire was in the same part of the county as the gin house of Mr. Wilkerson, which was burned not long since, and it is thought that an incendiary did that burning also. If these theories are true we very much hope the guilty will be brought to justice.

Americus Recorder.

From Mr. T. C. Stewart, the excellent deputy sheriff of Lee, we learn of the shocking killing of a child by her mother, a colored woman, Henny Ladd, aided perhaps, by her sister Nell Thomas. At the time of the occurrence, over a month ago, the mother was working on the farm of John L. Laramore, in Lee. At noon she quit work, but appeared in the field the next afternoon. From her changed looks it was evident that she had given birth to her child. This she did not deny, and stated that her sister Nell aided at the accouchment. Soon after, the mother came to Sumter, and the sister went to a neighboring farm. Suspicion was aroused. Mr Larramore, the owner, inspected the garden attached to the house where the mother and sister stayed. Removing the dirt at one spot, the child was found with its body in an upright posture. The coroner was notified. Dr. Baker stated that the skull was broken in three places. Warrants of arrest were issued. The sisters now in jail disclaim all knowledge of the matter. The mother is not yet arrested.

Oglethorpe Echo.

One night last week Mr. John W. Tiller, at the Glade, heard a fuss at a negro house in his yard, and upon repairing there found a negro man named Upson Sims, who had broken into his cook's house and secreted himself under her bed. It seems that Upson once lived with this woman as her husband, but he deserted her, and owing to his turbulent character was forbidden by Mr. T. to come on his premises. When that gentleman reached the spot he found Upson in the road, and upon inquiring his mission the negro told Mr. Tiller that it was none of his d—d business, but if he must know he came there to kill the woman in whose house he was found, and if he (Tiller) advanced another step he would put a ball in him too. Upon this he made some aggressive movement, when Mr. Tiller fired. The negro then returned the shot and escaped. Both balls flew wide the mark. Monday the negro was captured in Athens, carried back to the Glade and tried and committed for burglary, and is now confined in jail.

Americus Recorder.

Some three years ago, King Simmons, colored, of Lee county, was the husband of Georgia Simmons. In an evil hour King was overcome by the charms of one Dora, a mulatto girl from toward Thomasville, who agreed to become his own upon the removal of the one small obstacle—his marriage to Georgia. This the inconstant husband easily accomplished to the entire satisfaction of himself, of his inamorata, and of the officiating clergyman, Rev. Steve White. Report has it that King came to Americus where a lawyer granted the desired "bill of divorcement," as the Bible calls it, for the even sum of twelve dollars, and sent him back homeward rejoicing. Presenting his document, Dora thought she had now a legal right to bestow her hand and heart, and the parson shared in the same belief. For a goodly time did the course of true love run along smoothly; but one day it was whispered that all was not right, and Georgia prosecuted her husband for bigamy and Dora for adultery. Dora was acquitted on the plea of ignorance, but King has departed for other climes to make other conquests.

Wiregrass Watchman.

EASTMAN, August 3.—A most provoking and dastardly attempt to murder and rob a highly respectable married lady was perpetrated two miles above this place yesterday morning about seven o'clock, the particulars of which are about as follows: At the hour mentioned, Isaiah Richardson (negro) approached Mr. E. B. Lashley's house, in the absence of all the family except Mrs. Lashley and her two-year-old child, and pretended to want to buy chickens and eggs. Upon being informed by the lady that she had nothing of the kind for sale, he deliberately walked in the house and demanded the keys to the trunks, etc. On being refused, he then grappled with Mrs. L. and demanded her money or her life, and at the same time prepared to put his threats into execution by raising a (well seasoned) hickory stick. At this stage of the proceeding, Mrs. Lashley, by a miracle, extricated herself from his vice-like grip, and fled to where her husband was at work in the field. Search was immediately instituted, which resulted in the arrest of the miscreant in Eastman yesterday about one o'clock. A warrant was immediately issued, and a commitment trial ordered, and Richardson, in default of a one thousand dollar bond, was lodged in the county jail, to await the next term of Dodge superior court, which will be the first Monday in October. Such acts of lawlessness should put the people on their guard. No lady should be left alone unprotected.

Bainbridge Democrat.

Surely the times are really out of joint. Assassination and murder seems to be the normal condition of the atmosphere in a certain section of Decatur county. This time—not a white woman—but a negro man, is murdered by drowning. Our county has heretofore had a reputation for its respect of law and order, but we are about to forfeit it. But the details of this new horror we shall unfold to our readers. The body of a dead negro was found last Thursday, floating on the surface of the Buck Hole, a small pond 19 miles southwest of Bainbridge, by Mr. David Pickering. The body was in such a putrescent state that Mr. Pickering's stomach revolted at the discovery. As soon as notice reached our ebon coroner he took Mr. Bruce Kerr, ex coroner, and repaired to the scene. A jury was summoned in the neighborhood and an inquest proceeded with. The following are the general facts of the case: Deceased was identified as Charles Graham, a black negro 45 years of age. He was last seen by his brother on Monday the 25th ult., at about 2 o'clock, and was then engaged in cleaning a hog. He was evidently drowned by force for his hands were found tied together and a guano bag with sand in each end was strapped to his body. This sand was of sufficient weight to sink the body, and his murderers doubtless thought their victim would remain in the bottom of that pond until the morning of the resurrection; but alas for human hopes, the sand washed out of the bag, and the hideous, bloated, fish-eaten corpse floated to the top, as evidence of a damning crime. Upon examination no marks of violence were found on the body. His brother testified that on Monday evening he heard a voice at the pond say "ugh!" pretty loudly, but did not investigate and knew nothing. Graham's character was that of a notorious thief. The jury gave a verdict that the drowning was done by unknown parties—having found no clue to the perpetrators of this infamous deed.

The Denver and Rio Grande.

DENVER, August 6.—The opening of the Denver and Rio Grande railroad to Durango, 450 miles from this city, was celebrated there yesterday. This is the completion of one of the several extensions of that road now being constructed in this state. The extension just finished is two hundred miles long, beginning at Alamosa, on the Rio Grande river, and terminating in Animas valley. The valley is the natural southern outlet for the rich mining districts of the San Juan country, which has been but little developed, owing to the want of proper transportation facilities. At present two thousand men are employed on these extensions, and about three miles of track are laid daily. In April, 1880, 137 miles of road were operated. Eight hundred and fifty miles more of road are now under contract and the construction is being pushed as far as the Utah border. The extension to Gunnison City will be completed on Monday next. In 1880 the gross earnings for the seven months ending July 31st were $1,439,450 64, and for the same period of 1881 they were $3,104,042 87. The net earnings for the first six months in 1880 were $520,218.53, and for the first six months of 1881 were $1,173,839.65.

The Weather.

CHICAGO, August 6.—The extreme heat of the past few days disappeared early this morning with a fine shower, and to-day there is a cool northerly breeze, and the weather is comfortable.

DESMOINES, August 6.—Yesterday was the hottest day ever known here, the mercury reaching 99½ degrees. About 6 p.m. the temperature dropped in 15 minutes from 97 to 73.

The national system of grain inspection will be adopted in this city on October 1st.

The Young Christians in London.

LONDON, August 6.—At the farewell meeting to-day of the world's convention of the Young Men's Christian association, addresses were made by Sir John Kennaway, member of parliament, Professor Gladstone, Rev. John Hall, of New York, Mr. Russell Sturges, of Boston, and others. The convention has been a great success. The sum of $4,000 was pledged to inaugurate a work in Great Britain similar to that of the international committee of America.

Copious Rains.

MEMPHIS, August 6.—Copious rains fell yesterday along the entire length of the Mobile and Ohio railroad from Columbus, Kentucky, to Mobile, Alabama, a distance of 500 miles, benefiting immensely the crops in that region of the country.

Death of Orville Grant.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., August 6.—Mr. Orville Grant, brother of ex-President Grant, and who for some time past has been an inmate of the state asylum for the insane at Morris Plains, died yesterday. His remains were taken to Elizabeth for interment.

Southern Floods.

PENSACOLA, August 6.—The storm has lulled, but heavy rain showers continue. The Pensacola road is broken in several places, and heavy breaks are reported on the Mobile road, suspending all trains.

Failure at Halifax.

HALIFAX, August 6.—Moir, Son & Co., bankers, have suspended payment and direct liabilities are estimated at between $75,000 and $100,000.

Voices From Georgia.

Dade County Gazette.

Another road from Atlanta to Chattanooga by the way of Rome and Lafayette, is badly needed. It would not hurt the State road. But if it did, we think the increase in valuation of the property along the line would overbalance any loss the state might sustain from tolls or rents on the state road.

Dalton Argus.

A protective policy such as is now favored by the oppositionists would have dictated that no competing line should be built between Macon and Atlanta, but let the Central railroad enjoy for all futurity the exclusive privilege of carrying the freight between the two points. We stand upon the broad platform of letting any and everybody build railroads, any and everywhere, in Georgia they want to with their own means.

Augusta Chronicle.

We understand that a majority of the lessees of the Western and Atlantic railway favor Colonel Cole and his charter. If not, if any of them apprehend personal detriment, Colonel Cole stands ready to take their stock at the highest valuation and to relieve their minds of any future care on that line. This is the kind of argument that tells, or ought to, for it strikes dumb all opposition or discloses the exact amount of sincerity in its avowal. The Cole syndicate comes with its funds, not to destroy, but to build up; not to monopolize, but to compete; not to shut out the giant western empire, but to open it; not to damage our seaports, but to increase their traffic; not to diminish the values of farm lands, but to double them. How there should be the slightest hesitation to welcome such a syndicate and to make its path smooth, we are unable to comprehend.

When Mr. Olroyd [illegible] loaded too heavy, and the result was [illegible] Mr. Olroyd was thrown to the ground, and the blood began flowing from his mouth. He was removed to Mr. Bird's home, 163 Loyd street, where he is now surrounded by friends.

Mr. Olroyd is subject to these attacks, and feels no uneasiness whatever. He says he will be out when the day for the contest arrives. The physicians apprehend no danger.

The Water-Works.

For the purpose of considering the proposition of the Holly works, submitted through their agent, now in Atlanta, there was issued by Major English yesterday, a call for a special session of the city council for last night. To the call Aldermen Beermann, Lowry and Goodwin and Councilman Pinson, Payne and Berkele, responded. Mayor English received a paper from Mr. Adair, of the water works, but in the absence of a quorum, the same was not read. An effort to secure a called session Monday night will be made

United States Commissioner's Court.

John T. Stewart, of Campbell county, was before Commissioner Smith, yesterday, charged with illicit distilling. He was required to give a bond of $300 for his appearance at the next term of the district court.

William Stack was before the same commissioner on a charge of distilling and removing, and was required to give a bond for a further hearing.

The Bank Statement:

The New York weekly statement of associated banks shows the following changes: Loans, increase $1,436,400; specie decrease, $4,532,600; legal tenders decrease, $871,800; deposits decrease, $4,435,200; circulation increase, $147,700; reserve decrease, $4,295,500. Banks now hold $5,735,225 in excess of legal requirements.

SOUTHERN SUMMER RESORT NOTES.

TOCCOA has now a large number of summer visitors.

THERE are 300 guests at White Cliff. They sleep in the parlors and in cabins on cots and pallets.

AMONG the 550 guests at Bedford springs, Virginia, are several Georgians, including the family of Mr. Glover, of Atlanta.

THERE are some 80 visitors at Cohutta springs, Ga. With the fine hotel next summer, it will be a popular resort.

AMONG the four hundred visitors at Rawley springs, Va., there are 42 guests from Charleston, S. C.

THERE are 100 guests at Tallulah falls. Billiards and ten pins, a fine band of music, good fare, and fine scenery.

THERE was a ball at Tate's springs last night. Among the names of the committee on reception is that of John L. Hopkins, of Atlanta.

THERE are some 200 persons at Yellow springs, in Blount county, Tennessee. They lie around in log cabins, for the lack of better accommodations.

AN unusual large number of people have visited the Chalybeate springs, in Meriwether county, this season. The accommodations are excellent. Dr Angier, of this city, will leave for these springs Monday.

ONLY 85 degrees at Bale's springs, Tennessee, this summer. These springs are on the west side of Stone mountain. Quite a number of guests, among them a good many Georgians. Mrs. Frank Perryman, of Atlanta, is at these springs.

POLITICAL POINTS

SHOWING THE COMING DRIFT.

The Barksdale Party in Mississippi Unite Upon Mr. Lowery for Governor, thus Defeating the Lamar People—Virginia's Democratic Candidates.

JACKSON, Miss., August 6.—At no time since the organization of the convention has there been the same activity, the same personal zeal and interest in the respective candidates as to-day, George Stone and Major Barksdale, two of the most prominent candidates, being in the capitol inspiring their followers to stand firm to the end. Seven ballots were taken to-day, when the convention adjourned for dinner. The twenty-seventh ballot stood: Stone, 108; Barksdale, 99; Featherstone, 19; Calhoun 12. When the convention met in the afternoon session, Calhoun's name was withdrawn on the thirty-first ballot.

The convention took a recess for five minutes. When the convention reconvened, Barksdale and Featherstone were withdrawn and Robert Lowery placed in nomination.

General Tucker in nominating Lowery said he was the embodiment of two ideas, namely, opposition to the third term and severance of the judiciary from the executive department.

The Stone delegation immediately began filibustering on a motion to adjourn. By a call of counties a test vote gave for adjournment 112, against 128. Finally, by consent, the convention adjourned until 9 p. m.

The thirty-first ballot resulted: Stone, 112; Lowery, 126. On motion, Lowery's nomination was made unanimous. G. D. Shands was nominated for lieutenant governor on the first ballot.

The democratic convention on the thirty-first ballot nominated for governor General Robert Lowery, of Rankin county. Major Barksdale, General Featherstone and Judge Calhoun were previously withdrawn. The vote stood: Lowery, 126; Stone, 112. Great enthusiasm prevails. The success of General Lowery is regarded as an indorsement of the Barksdale wing of the party.

Sketch of Major Daniel.

Major John Warwick Daniel, the nominee for governor of Virginia, is a native of Lynchburg, Va. His father was Judge William Daniel, Jr., at the breaking out of the war a judge of the court of appeals of Virginia, and his mother was a daughter of Mr. John M. Warwick, a leading citizen of Lynchburg. His grandfather was also a judge of the court of appeals of Virginia. Major Daniel was educated at Lynchburg college, and from there went to the university of Virginia, where he was when the late civil war began. He joined o[illegible] first companies organized at the [illegible] versity, and went to Manassas as a private. Shortly afterwards he was called to the personal staff of General Jubal A. Early, and was successively promoted until he reached the rank of major and became adjutant of Early's noted division. In the battle of the Wilderness, in 1864, Major Daniel received a terrible wound whilst heading a charge, which made him a cripple for life. The wound was in the thigh, and was at first deemed mortal. Major Daniel's strong will, however, pulled him through, though he is still a frequent sufferer from the wound, and is often compelled to resort to his crutch. At the close of the war Major Daniel resumed his studies at the university of Virginia, and graduated in a number of the schools, including that of law, with distinguished honor. His address delivered before the literary societies the year after his graduation, stands as one of the most eloquent and scholarly ever delivered at the university. Major Daniel at once entered upon the practice of law at Lynchburg, and soon established a reputation as one of the most eloquent and skillful lawyers in Virginia. He was soon elected to the Virginia legislature, where he took a leading position as a debater as well [illegible] in mapping out necessary legislation. On two occasions he was pressed for a congressional nomination by his friends, but failed on account of combinations against him, though on both occasions the leading candidate. Four years ago he was pressed for the gubernatorial nomination, but the friends of General Mahone, who was also a candidate, recognizing the possibility of defeat, went over in a body and secured the nomination of Governor Holliday, the present incumbent, to whom Major Daniel accorded an enthusiastic support. For the past four years Major Daniel has represented Lynchburg and Campbell county in the state senate. In every political campaign since 1868 he has borne the democratic banner to the front, and it is conceded he has no superior in the state as an orator or debater. In addition to the service performed for the party, the state, and his numerous clients, Major Daniel has found time to write numerous books on law, which are accepted as standards by the Virginia court of appeals, besides which he has been pressed into service frequently as the orator of literary, agricultural, medical and other societies. In personal appearance Major Daniel is strikingly handsome, and reminds one of Mr. Edwin Booth, the actor. He is in the prime of manhood, being about forty years of age, and is happ[illegible] married to the accomplished [illegible] Dr. E. H. Murrell, of Lynchburg. [illegible] gentlemen named for the gove[illegible] Major Daniel is, perhaps, best calc[illegible] enkindle enthusiasm, and he ma[illegible] pected to head an exciting and a [illegible] canvass.

A Terrible Casualty.

Special dispatch to The Constitution.

CHARLESTON, August 6.—A letter to [illegible] and Courier from the western pa[illegible] county, this state, gives an account of a terrible and extraordinary casualty from lightning. On Thursday afternoon a group of twenty men, all white road hands, were standing close to the house of J. H. Cleyburn, near Hartsville, when a single stroke of lightning killed four and wounded ten of the number. Five of the wounded are desperately hurt and may die. There was no storm at the time, though a heavy rain fell shortly afterwards.

Bradlaugh's Followers.

Special dispatch to The Constitution.

LONDON, August 6.—A meeting of 1,000 persons at Northampton, was addressed by Mr. Bradlaugh to-day, who had his arm in a sling, and was suffering from erysipelas. He said that if his constituency continued to trust him he would keep on in the struggle as long as he lived. He denounced the conduct of the house of commons and expressed his determination to win and to punish his enemies. The speech was received with great cheering.

Address THE CONSTITUTION,
Atlanta, Ga.

Entered as second-class matter in the Atlanta post office, December 11, 1879.

ATLANTA, GA., AUGUST 7 1881.

THE news from North Carolina is very discouraging to those who desire to put an end to intemperance by force. At this writing it is not known that the prohibitionists have carried a single county.

THE mountain regions of the south do in all the moonshiners of the for the mountain regions of are beginning to show up a ble number of illicit stills. The rmonter seems to have no more for federal statutes than the men ave been hunted down in the de of the Blue Ridge ever since the of the war.

convention between England and ers was signed last week, and to w the Transvaal will be turned over own people, who are to control er its home affairs, England re the control of its foreign relations of passage for her troops the republic. This brings to an nother wrong of the imperial policy e tories, thanks to Mr. Gladstone the bravery of the Boers themselves.

INE rains have fallen in large sections the south, but there are spots that dry. And in the northwest considerable sections in which suffering on account of excessive but the probability is that rain before the crop is ruined. The is beyond all danger from a d to a great extent no great n that score need be appre the cotton crop.

erial family of Russia has jus r narrow escape from assas the hands of some of the of the empire. There seems peace for Russia short of an of the autocracy. The nihilists t a republic, but they do want to have constitutional rule, including a parliamentary body and a responsible ministry. The truth is, the nihilist leaders are not as black as they are sometimes painted.

THE northern branch of the Methodist rch has lost two Bishops Haven, the last one at Portland, Oregon, a few days ago. The two men were cousins, but were very unlike. Gilbert Haven was a fiery, magnetic speaker, and the man whose death has just been announced was a prudent, sagacious counsellor—an able but not an eloquent reacher. The place of Bishop Gilbert aven was filled last year, but the new cancy can not be filled until 1884.

THE Mississippi democratic convention ceeded in nominating General Robert wery, of Rankin county, for governor. contest at the outset was between rnor Stone, the liberal or Lamar ate, and Major Ethelbert Barks of the ultras and editor larion. Mr. Feather alhoun were in the be ses, but General Lowery a vote until after the General Lowery was as a compromise candi rnor Stone received 112 ballot, while the nomi arly all the votes that on the day of the convention were cast or Barksdale, Featherstone and Calhoun. The nomination of General Lowery will, however, put an end to the bitter fight between the two wings of the party and insure an overwhelming majority for the ticket in November. The defeat of Barksdale probably gives Mr. Lamar a walk-over for the senate.

An Equalization of Taxes.

We can see no reason why Senator Westbrook's bill, which is discussed in another column, should not pass.

It simply aims to equalize the taxable erty in the state. It is a t that a large percentage of tax- turn their property at much less than actual value. Every dollar of undervalue by these people is a dollar added to the burdens of those who make fair returns. An example of the difference between assessment and personal return is furnished in Atlanta. The value of city property alone returned by the city assessors is nearly $2,000,000 greater than the entire value of Fulton county as returned by the state tax receivers. This makes a difference of probably $3,500,000 in Fulton county alone.

It must be remembered that this bill does not propose to raise the general assessment. It simply proposes to raise the unfair valuation to the level of the fair valuation, and make the burden uniform and equal. This is the most essential duty of the state to its citizens. It most signally fails to perform this duty as things are at present organized. Senator Westbrook's bill is a long step forward, and we hope it will pass—with such amendments as may be suggested by a full discussion of the bill.

The Dangers of Monopoly.

Judge James S. Hook, of Augusta, has recently written two exceedingly able and interesting letters to the Augusta Chronicle. The first was in the nature a protes the operations of the nancial sys the country and the aggressions of the railway power—the twin monopolies that are preying upon the prosperity of the unorganized classes, as the people may be termed. The second was in reply to some criticisms made upon the first by Mr. W. D. Tutt. Judge Hook states that when he attacks the national banking system and railroad and telegraph monopolies, he is not to be understood as making war upon persons, but upon things. He shows that the banks have now almost entire control of the currency of the country; that they are using this tremendous power to their own aggrandizement; that by these, by the railroad and other combinations, the people are de their hard earnings jeered and mocked eir poverty. Judge Hook all these vast powers tional banks, to the other corporations, of the government the great body of all classes and d in chains of slavery far more galling than those sundered by the war.

Judge Hook's position is that of a thoughtful man who believes that these dangers which are threatened by the corporate monopolies of the country should be made known to the people in order that steps may be taken to avert them. His position is that of nearly every thoughtful and impartial man, and he writes earnestly and eloquently.

An Anti-Mormon Missionary Society.

The Independent, (New York,) calling for the immediate organization of an anti-Mormon missionary society, says:

> It can hardly have escaped the attention of those who have studied the Mormon question that the church of the Latter-Day-Saints is a very strong and active missionary organization; but is the general public aware of the extent of the ruinous results of this propeganda? It has numerous persistent proselyters in various parts of Europe, who preach the less objectionable doctrines of the faith among the ignorant and credulous classes, and send thousands of converts to this country, to swell the population of Utah and enrich with their worldly possessions the coffers of the church. These poor dupes never learn what Mormonism is until it is too late to retrace their steps. The most revolting feature of the system is revealed only in the Salt Lake Paradise, to which the new saints are led to look with longing eyes. If the Mormon missionaries were true preachers of the Mormon religion, they would do far less harm; but deception is an indispensable part of their policy, and with it they do Satan's work most effectually. Their movements are swift and silent. They do not herald their achievements. A paragraph in our newspapers occasionally tells us a large company of victims have arrived at Castle Garden, on their way to Mormondom; but this is all the general public knows. Their agents are present in communities in our own country, unknown to the majority, and gather in here and there a person. In many of our cities small bands of converts meet unnoticed, and in mining regions and in communities composed chiefly of foreigners Mormon agents industriously propagate their doctrines.

We are convinced that the editor of the Independent, in putting the case thus mildly, is deceiving both himself and his readers. The foregoing quotation, in part and in whole, is merely an excuse for the continuation of the temporizing policy which has marked the attitude of our people toward the hideous moral ulcer known as Mormonism. If the efforts of the Mormon propaganda were confined merely to bringing immigrants over the sea; nay, if its agents, who "are present in communities "in our own country," succeeded only in gathering in here and there a person, there would be little occasion for the serious discussion of the subject. But it is well known that there is a continual stream of Mormon immigrants flowing into Utah from every state in the union, the result of the persistent and active efforts of the emissaries of prostitution. In Georgia, a "conference" has been established, the missionaries are active in a dozen counties, and Mormon Sunday-schools are now in operation. What is true of Georgia, is true also of Alabama, North and South Carolina, Tennessee and other states. We have information that the propaganda has for some months been laying comparatively successful siege to large sections of the south. The emissaries have ceased shipping their converts in large bodies on the ground that it attracts unfavorable comment, and the victims now go to Utah in little squads.

In view of these facts and others that might be mentioned, we do not hesitate to pronounce the Anti-Mormon missionary society a dream. It will require something more tangible and substantial than this to offset the efforts of the Mormon propaganda.

THE new capitol at Albany has been struck by lightning. This is supposed to be in the nature of a tribute to Conkling's influence.

THE HON. Charles Bradlaugh, of London, doesn't act like a man who is loaded. He is not a true republican of the American pattern, else he would have kept his place in the house of commons by means of bribery, or he would have assassinated somebody after the fashion of Guiteau. Your true American republican feels it to be a duty he owes to the god of storms, so to speak, to hold office at all hazards.

DR. HAMMOND, of New York, doesn't seem to be getting along as well as the president. This goes to show that Bliss and Crump correctly diagnosed the case at the outset.

GENERAL McDOWELL asked the privilege of having his portrait painted at government expense, so it could be hung up in his office where he could look at it. General Sherman indorsed on the request this eloquent language: "The line must be 'drawn somewhere, and I propose to draw "it here;" and now there will be war between these gifted men. Grant will have to be made captain-general of the whole caboodle.

THE Hon G. Frisbie Hoar says the people of Massachusetts are not an office-seeking people. This is true. They are peculiarly an office holding people.

THE Boston Herald will put up a strong fight for reform until the next general election. Then Editor Haskell will slip his thumbs through the arm-holes of his waistcoat and request his young men to put in a few solid licks for the machine. So with the Springfield Republican. This kind of crusading is exceedingly cheap, but it is so very neat—the editors seem so utterly unconscious of the pretense which they practice—that we cannot refrain from occasionally hugging the delusion to our palpitating bosoms.

THERE seems to be a field in North Carolina for John B. Gough. Perhaps John hesitates to pitch his tent in the wilderness.

DEACON RICHARD SMITH, of the Cincinnati Gazette, has two announcements in the editorial columns of his valuable paper, of Friday's date, that Martin Luther flung a leaden inkstand at Satan, and that Satan thereupon disappeared. The worthy deacon makes a specialty of this class of news.

IF General Sherman is unable to manufacture his own poetry, why should he fly to foreign authors? Has he forgotten the existence of the Sweet Singer of Michigan?

CINCINNATI is to have a fertilizer factory in the fashionable part of the town. So we learn from the Enquirer. Somehow or other we had accumulated the impression that there were seven or eight of these progressive establishments in full blast within a stone's throw of Fountain square.

THE rumor started in one of our obscure northern exchanges that Conkling is to become assistant editor of Mr. Watterson's valuable paper probably has no real foundation. We do not believe Editor Watterson would affiliate with Conkling.

GENERAL SHERMAN has been caught in the act of quoting poetry from "Pinafore" to emphasize his indorsement of official documents. This shows the necessity for real reform. Things are coming to a pretty pass in the republic when the army is commanded by a man who cannot write his own poetry.

THE governor of North Carolina will not be able to remark to the governor of South Carolina that the horologic distance intervening between cocktails is too grievous to be borne.

DEACON RICHARD SMITH is now engaged in making open war upon Mr. Charles A. Dana. There have been occasions when a disposition on the part of the Cincinnati Gazette to form a line of fight in front of the New York Sun could be traced to Mr. S. Romeo Reed, the military editor, but when the attack is made with the venomous tenderness and solicitude of a missionary, the world knows that the deacon himself has a hand in it.

UNCLE REMUS.

Mr. Rabbit Breaks Up a Lunch Party.

As long as Uncle Remus allowed 'Tildy to remain in the cabin, the little boy was not particularly interested in preventing the perfunctory abuse which the old man might feel disposed to bestow upon the complacent girl. The truth is, the child's mind was occupied with the episode in the story of Mr. Benjamin Ram which treats of the style in which this romantic old wag put Mr. and Mrs. Wolf to flight by playing a tune upon his fiddle. The little boy was particularly struck with this remarkable feat, as many a youngster before him had been, and he made bold to recur to it again by asking Uncle Remus for all the details. It was plain to the latter that the child regarded Mr. Ram as the typical hero of all the animals, and this was by no means gratifying to the old man. He answered the little boy's questions as well as he could, and, when nothing more remained to be said about Mr. Ram, he settled himself back in his chair and resumed the curious history of Brother Rabbit:

"Co'se Mr. Ram mighty smart man. I aint 'spute dat; but needer Mr Ram ner yet Mr. Lam is soon creeturs like Brer Rabbit. Mr. Benjermun Ram, he tuck'n' skeer off Brer Wolf en his ole 'oman wid his fiddle, but, b'ess yo' soul, ole Brer Rabbit he done gone en done wuss'n dat."

"What did Brother Rabbit do?" asked the little boy.

"One time," said Uncle Remus, "Brer Fox he tuck'n' ax some er de yuther creeturs ter his house. He ax Brer B'ar, en Brer Wolf, en Brer 'Coon, but he aint ax Brer Rabbit. All de same, Brer Rabbit got win' un it, en he 'low dat ef he don't go, he speck he have much fun ez de nex' man.

"De creeturs w'at git de invite, dey tuck'n' 'semble at Brer Fox house, en Brer Fox, he ax um in en got um cheers, en dey sot dar en laugh en talk, twel, bimeby, Brer Fox, he fotch out a bottle er dram en lay 'er out on de side-bode, en den he sorter step back en say, sezee:

"'Des step up, gentermens, en he'p yo'se'f,' en you better b'lieve dey he'p derse'f.

"W'iles dey wuz drinkin' en drammin' en gwine on, w'at you speck Brer Rabbit doin'? You des well make up yo' min' dat Brer Rabbit monst'us busy, kaze he 'uz sailin' 'roun' fixin' up his tricks. Long time 'fo' dat, Brer Rabbit done bin at a bobbycue whar dey wuz a muster, en w'iles all de folks 'uz down at de spring eatin' dinner, Brer Rabbit he crope up en run off wid wunner de drums. Dey wuz a big drum en a little drum, en Brer Rabbit, he snatch up de littles' one en run home.

"Now, den, w'en he year 'bout de yuther creaturs gwine ter Brer Fox house, w'at do Brer Rabbit do but git out de rattlin' drum en make his way down de road todes whar dey is. He tuk dat drum," continued Uncle Remus, with great elation of voice and manner, "en he went down de road todes Brer Fox house, en he make 'er talk like thunner mix up wid hail. Hit talk like dis:

"'Diddybum, diddybum, diddybum bum-bum—diddybum!'

"De creeturs, dey 'uz a drinkin', en a drammin', en a-gwine on at a terrible rate, en dey aint year de racket, but, all de same, yer come Brer Rabbit:

"'Diddybum, diddybum, diddybum-bum bum—diddybum!'

"Bimeby Brer 'Coon, w'ich he allers got one year hung out fer de news, he up'n' ax Brer Fox w'at dat, en by dat time all de creeturs stop' en lissen; but, all de same, yer come Brer Rabbit:

"'Diddybum, diddybum, diddybum-bum-bum—diddybum!'

"De creeturs, dey keep on lis'nin', en Brer Rabbit keep on gittin' nigher, twel, bimeby, Brer 'Coon reach under de cheer fer his hat, en say, sezee:

"'Well, gents, I speck I better be gwine. I tole my ole 'oman dat I won't be gone a minnit, en yer 'tis 'way 'long in de day.'

"Wid dat Brer Coon, he skip out, but he ain't git much fudder dan de back gate, 'fo' yer come all de yuther creeturs like dey 'uz runnin' a foot race, en ole Brer Fox wuz wukkin in de lead."

"Dar, now!" exclaimed 'Tildy, with great fervor.

"Yasar! dar dey wuz, and dar dey went," continued Uncle Remus. "Dey tuck nigh cuts, en dey scramble over wunner n'er, en dey ain't res' twel dey git in de bushes.

"Ole Brer Rabbit, he come on down de road—diddybum, diddybum, diddybum-bum-bum—en bless gracious! w'en he git ter Brer Fox house dey aint nobody dar. Brer Rabbit is dat owdacious, dat he hunt all 'roun' twel he fine de a'r hole er de drum, en he put his mouf ter dat en sing out, sezee:

"'Is dey anybody home?' en den he answer hisse'f, sezee: 'Law, no, honey—folks all gone.'

"Wid dat, ole Brer Rabbit break loose en laugh, he did, fit ter kill hisse'f, en den he slam Brer Fox front gate wide open, en march up ter de house. W'en he git dar, he kick de do' open en hail Brer Fox, but nobody aint dar, en Brer Rabbit he walk in en take a cheer, en make hisse'f at home wid puttin' his foots on de sofy en spittin' on de flo'.

"Brer Rabbit aint sot dar long 'fo' he ketch a whiff er de dram ——"

"Your year dat?" exclaimed 'Tildy, with convulsive admiration.

"—'Fo' he ketch a whiff er de dram, en den he see it on de side-bode, en he step up en drap 'bout a tumbeler full some'rs down in de neighborhoods er de goozle. Brer Rabbit mighty like some folks I knows. He tuck one tumbeler full, en 'twa'n't long 'fo' he tuck 'n'er'n, en w'en a man do dis away," continued Uncle Remus, somewhat apologetically, "he bleedz ter get drammy."

"Truth, too!" said 'Tildy, by way of hearty confirmation.

"All dis time de yuther creeturs wuz down in de bushes lissenin' for de diddybum, en makin' ready fer ter light out fum dar at de drop uv a hat. But dey aint year no mo' fuss, en bimeby Brer Fox, he say he gwine back en look atter his plunder, en de yuther creeturs say dey b'leeve dey'l go 'long wid 'im. Dey start out, dey did, en dey crope todes Brer Fox house, but dey crope mighty keerful, en I boun' ef somebody'd 'a' shuck a bush, dem ar creeturs 'nd a nat'ally to' up de ye'th gittin' 'way fum dar. Yit dey still aint year no fuss, en dey keep on creepin' twel dey git in de house.

"W'en dey git in dar, de fus' sight dey see wuz ole Brer Rabbit stannin' up by de dram bottle mixin up a toddy, en he wa'n't so stiff kneed ne'r, kaze he sorter swage fum side ter side, en he look like he mighty limbersome, w'ich, goodness knows, a man bleedz ter be limbersome w'en he drink dat kinder licker w'at Brer Fox perwide fer dem creeturs.

"W'en Brer Fox see Brer Rabbit makin' free wid his doin's dat away, w'at you speck he do?" inquired Uncle Remus, with the air of one seeking general information.

"I speck he cust," said 'Tildy, who was apt to take a vividly practical view of matters.

"He was glad," said the little boy, "because he had a good chance to catch Brother Rabbit."

"Tooby sho' he wuz," continued Uncle Remus' heartily assenting to the child's interpretation of the situation; "tooby sho' he wuz. He stan' dar. Brer Fox did, en he watch Brer Rabbit motions. Bimeby he holler out, sezee:

"'Ah yi! Brer Rabbit!' sezee. 'Many's de time is you made yo' 'scape, but now I got you!' En wid dat, Brer Fox en de yuther creeturs cloze in on Brer Rabbit.

"Seem like I done tole you dat Brer Rabbit done gone en tuck mo' dram dan w'at 'uz good fer his wholesome. 'E head aint swim so bad dat he doin', en time he lay eyes on , he know he done got in close quarters. Soon ez he see dis, Brer Rabbit make like he bin down in de cup mo' deeper dan w'at he is, en he stagger roun' like town gal stannin' in a bateau, en he seem like he des ez limber ez a wet rag. He stagger up ter Brer Fox, he did, en he roll his eyeballs 'roun', en slap 'im on de back en ax 'im how he ma. Den w'en he see de yuther creeturs," continued Uncle Remus, "he holler out, he did:

"'Vents yo' uppance, gentermens! Vents yo' uppance! Ef you'll des gimme han'-roomance en cum one at a time, de tussel'll las' longer. How you all come on, nohow?' sezee

"Ole Brer Rabbit talk so cu'us dat de yuther creeturs have mo' fun dan w'at you'k'n shake a stick at, but bimeby Brer Fox say dey better git downter business, en den dey all cloze in on Brer Rabbit, en dar he wuz.

"In dem days, ole man B'ar wuz a jedge 'mongs' de creeturs, en dey all ax 'im w'at dey gwine do 'long wid Brer Rabbit, en Jedge B'ar, he put on his specks, en cle'r up his th'oat, en say dat de bes' way ter do wid a man w'at kick up such a racket, en run de neighbors outer der own house, en go in dar en level on de pantry, is ter take 'im out en drown 'im; en ole Brer Fox, w'ich he settin' on de jury, he up'n smack his hands tergedder, en say, sezee, dat atter dis he bleedz ter b'leeve dat Jedge B'ar done got all under holt on de lawyer books, kaze dat 'zackly w'at dey say w'en a man level on he neighbor pantry.

"Den Brer Rabbit, he make out he skeerd, en he holler en cry, en beg um, in de name er goodness, don't fling 'im in de spring branch, kaze dey all know he dunn'r howter swim; but ef dey bleedz fer ter pitch 'im in, den fer mussy sake gin 'im a walkin'-cane, so he kin have sumpin' ter hol' ter w'iles he drownin'.

"Ole Brer B'ar scratch his head en say, sezee, dat fer ez his 'membrance go back, he aint come 'cross nothin' in de lawyer book ter de contraries er dat, en den dey all 'gree dat Brer Rabbit kin have a walkin'-cane.

"Wid dat, dey ketch up Brer Rabbit en put 'im in a wheelborrow, en kyar 'im down ter de branch, en fling 'im in.

"Eh-eh!" exclaimed 'Tildy, with well-feigned astonishment.

"Dey fling 'im in," continued Uncle Remus, "en Brer Rabbit light on his foots, same ez a tom cat, en pick his way out by de helps er de walkin-cane. De water wuz dat shaller dat it don't mo'n come over Brer Rabbit slipper, en we'n he git out on 't'er side, he holler back, sezee:

"'So long, Brer Fox!'"

Saved.

Sheltering Arms.

The wind is spent and the gale is past,
And the morning sun shines forth at last;
It shines on a strip of yellow sand,
And a good ship sinking in sight of land.

Over her deck and her battered side
Lazily washes the ebbing tide;
Out of the struggle and deadly strife
Lo! nothing saved but a baby life.

A wee frail thing is the one poor waif,
A wee frail thing to be sound and safe;
But all forgotten its brief alarms,
It gayly crows in the stranger arms.

A sailor looks at the little form—
"Tis a tiny craft to have stemmed the storm!"
He sighs a bit as he bends him low,
And his thoughts fly back to the long ago.

Just such a babe on his young wife's breast,
With clinging fingers his own caressed;
Just such another—but where is he?
Wrecked on the voyage of life, maybe.

Is this but spared that in years to come
It may drift away from its heavenly home?
The baby laughs as his boy once did;
Ah, will it be so? Nay, God forbid!

The sailor's hand has a gentle touch
For the sake of the lad he loved so much;
And soft from his lips are the words that fall:
"God bless the children—God keep them all!"

—Separate holdings of land in France continue to increase in number by the subdivision of property. A return recently made by the director of direct taxes says that the number of holdings on which the foncier tax is paid increased from 11,511,841 in 1842 to 13,118,723 in 1858, and to 14 264,388 in 1880, the greater relative increase occurring in the years 1842–1858 France has changed but little the extent of her territory since 1842, for if she lost 1 400 100 hectares (2½ acres) by the war of 1870, she gained 1 277,100 hectares by the annexation of Nice and Savoy in 1861. About one-half of the holdings, 6 686,948 in 1858, and 7,320,778 in 1880, paid a foncier tax of less than five francs; and two-thirds of the remaining holdings a tax not exceeding ten francs On the other hand, the estates paying more than 1,000 francs of foncier tax fell from 15,170 in 1853 to 14 774 in 1880

—Florence, the actor, who recently held an interview with the pope, in company with Millionaire Mackey, says that the pope wore a long, white cassock, of a stuff that looked like merino. It had a narrow binding of a pale rose color, and the buttons were of the same color. Over it he wore a white cape trimmed with down. He wore white silk stockings and white shoes, each with a golden cross upon it. On his head he had a white skull cap with a binding of pale rose tint. He had a white sash, and around his neck a heavy gold chain, from which hung a cross of diamonds and rubies. The pope told Mr. Florence that he had not been outside of the vatican for ten years. —Of the fashion in which the late John Burnside, of New Orleans, bought his hand some house in that city the St. Louis Republican says that Mr. Burnside went to a large entertainment, at which he met James Robb, who died near Cincinnati last week. Mr. Robb owned one of the finest residences in New Orleans. The house was built by him. Burnside asked Robb what value he placed on his house Robb replied: "There is not an Irishman in New Orleans rich enough to buy it. I ask $185,000." Burnside put his hand in his pocket, drew out his check book and immediately drew his check for the amount and the bargain was closed.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY, a marvelous cure for Catarrh, Diphtheria, Canker mouth and Headache. With each bottle there is an ingenious nasal Injector for the more successful treatment of these complaints without extra charge. Price 50 cents. Sold by all druggists.

—Lord Carrington, an English liberal, says that in Beaconsfield's opinion the best form of government was an absolute sovereignty based on the support of democracy, and the world could be best governed by kings and statesmen, and not by the people. His policy was certainly not that of the liberal party, and he (Lord Carrington) did not think it commended itself to the great conservative party. The tories, however, made a compact with Lord Beaconsfield, he giving them his talents and bringing them back into office, and they in return surrendering their opinions.

Wonderful Power.

When a medicine performs such cures as Kidney-Wort is constantly doing, it may truly be said to have wonderful power. A carpenter in Montgomery, Vt., had suffered for eight years from the worst of kidney diseases, and had been wholly incapacitated for work. He says, "One box made a new man of me, and I sincerely believe it will restore to health all that are similarly afflicted." It is now sold in both liquid and dry form.—Danbury News.

—A new monument has been erected over the grave of William M. Tweed in Greenwood cemetery, at a cost of about $5,000, and bearing the inscription: "William M. Tweed, born April 3, 1823; died April 13 1878. Mary Jane Skaden, wife of William M. Tweed, born March 22, 1825; died February 13, 1880" At the foot of each grave is a granite block, on one of which is the word "Father" and on the other the word "Mother." The family plat is surrounded by granite posts, connected by brass railings. It also contains a monument erected by Mr. Tweed to the memory of his parents, and smaller memorials marking the graves of his two children.

BURNETT'S COCOAINE

Promotes the Growth of the Hair,

And renders it dark and glossy. It holds, in a liquid form, a large proportion of deodorized COCOANUT OIL, prepared expressly for this purpose. No other compound possesses the peculiar properties which so exactly suit the various conditions of the human hair.

—Mr. John W. Bockwalter has placed his rare and costly art collection at the disposal of the Cincinnati exposition commission, for exhibition in their art gallery at the coming exposition. This is at the personal solicitation of Mr Harvey Anderson, representing the art commission. Among Mr. Bockwalter's paintings are pieces from the easels of such reputable artists at Knaus, Kaeminerer, Julian de Buent, Meyer, Bridgman, Eastman, Leutze and others. The collection is valued by the owner at $50,000, and cannot fail to prove one of the most attractive features of the exhibition.

AUCTION SALES.

THE HARRIS GROVE—16 BEAUTIFUL lots fronting Luckie and Plum streets, and embracing all the splendid grove in front of Col A L Harris' residence, will be sold next Tuesday at 4 o'clock. This is acknowledged to be the finest grove left in Atlanta, and is greatly admired by all who see it. Every lot is a gem, being naturally beautiful and densely shaded by superb forest oaks, which make them very attractive and desirable for homes or renting houses It is well known that on nice, shady lots, houses will always rent or sell easier and better. As investments or for homes, these lots are particularly attractive, being in a quiet, pleasant and convenient location, but one block from Marietta street car line, only a few yards from North avenue, which is being graded and will be a fine drive, and on Luckie street, which has been opened through and will be the main drive to the park. They are also convenient to the manufacturing portion of Atlanta, where such choice lots are sure to enhance and where houses will always be in demand. Go at once and examine these fine lots, make your selections and attend the sale. Free fare for all on the 4 o'clock Marietta street car. Titles absolutely perfect. Terms cash. Frierson & Leak, real estate agents, 33 Marietta street. 221 aug7—1t

CENTRAL HOTEL PROPERTY AT AUCtion.—We will sell on the premises, Tuesday, August 16th, at five o'clock, the large three story frame building (No. 46 Ivy street) known as the Central Hotel, containing 14 large rooms, on a large, central and very valuable lot fronting 144½ feet on the west side of Ivy street. At same time we will sell the five room cottage and lot joining the above in rear with use of alley to Ivy street. This fine large lot fronts a beautiful wide street, and is in the heart of Atlanta, which makes the lot alone very valuable; and suitable for almost any use, and the buildings, which are substantial but need paint and some repairs, are rented in their present condition for $50 per month and would rent for much more if fixed up a little. Parties wishing to make a good investment that will pay a fine interest and soon be worth a great deal on account of size and location of the lot should not neglect this opportunity. Titles perfect. Terms—One-third cash, balance 6 and 12 months at 8 per cent. Frierson & Leak.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Twenty-Seventh Day, August 6.

There was no session of the senate.

THE HOUSE.

The house met at 10:15 and was called to order by the speaker. Prayer by Mr. Henry, of the house. The roll was called and the journal was read.

The roll of counties was completed and the following new bills were introduced:

Mr. McKinney, of Upson—A bill to amend practice in claim cases. Referred to the committee on judiciary.

Mr Clark, of Wayne—A bill to amend section 13 of the school law of 1872. Referred to the committee of education.

Mr. Maddox, of Chattooga, offered a resolution requesting Hon. Francis Fontain to furnish the house a full list of all the emigrants he has induced to come to Georgia, as he is now asking the general assembly to reimburse him for his expenses as immigration agent for the state.

Bills on third reading were in order.

Mr. Kimsey, of White—A bill to incorporate the Cleveland and Lula railroad company. Passed.

Mr. Northen, of Hancock, moved that as the house was very thin, and it would be difficult to pass bills, he thought it best to read bills the second time.

Mr. Miller, of Houston, asked that before this motion should go into effect the house would allow read the third time a bill to provide for the payment of certain tax collectors for special services performed in 1880. The bill was read the third time. It refers to tax collectors who had also performed the duties of tax receivers and had not been paid therefor.

The bill appropriating money was considered in committee of the whole, with Mr. Basinger, of Chatham, in the chair.

Mr. Miller, its author, spoke in favor of its passage, and explained that it was a mere act of justice.

Questions as to the merits of the bill were asked by Messrs. Strother, of Lincoln, and Shockley, of Columbia.

Mr. Strother and Mr. Lewis, of Milton, asked if the bill is not unconstitutional, as it provides to pay for services already rendered.

Mr. Miller argued to prove that the bill was not unconstitutional.

The bill was passed.

Mr Edwards, of Tatnall, moved that the house adjourn at noon to 10 o'clock Monday. Agreed to.

Mr. Northen's motion to take up bills on second reading was agreed to.

A number of bills favorably reported were passed to a third reading, and the following bills adversely reported were lost:

A bill to provide for reimbursing counties for expenses in keeping lunatics.

A bill to provide for the appointment of of a solicitor of the county court of Putnam county.

A bill to amend the sections of the code relating to the crime of murder.

A bill to repeal the act creating state depositories.

A bill to amend the law regulating fees of solicitors was tabled.

Also, a bill to exempt building and loan associations from taxation.

The house, on motion of Mr. Day, of Pickens, resumed the regular order, and he introduced a bill to change and fix the times of holding superior courts of Pickens, Gilmer and Fannin. Read first time and referred to judiciary committee.

The house adjourned to Monday at 10 o'clock.

Colonel Abda Johnson.

A soldier of his regiment in the late war, and warmly attached to him, I beg the privilege of presenting a brief tribute, however imperfect, to the memory of this excellent man.

He was born in Elbert county, Georgia, October 8, 1826. His father, Colonel Lindsay Johnson, was a man of extensive influence and large wealth. But wealth and position did not paralise the energies of his son, or keep him back from the responsibilities and labors of an honorable career. The family moved to Bartow (then Cass) county, while the subject of this sketch was yet a child. Here, in the schools of the day, he prepared himself for college.

In 1844 he entered the junior class of the university of Georgia, and in 1846 graduated with honor as bachelor of arts. Leaving the university he read law with Colonel Murphy, of Decatur, Georgia, and was admitted to the bar at Lawrenceville, Gwinnett county, at the March term of the superior court, 1848. He located for the practice of his profession at Cassville. March 30, 1852, he married Miss Fannie Trippe, daughter of Hon. T. H. Trippe, who for several terms was judge of the Cherokee circuit. He became a member of the Masonic fraternity as far back as 1853—perhaps earlier—and at the time of his death had received all its degrees up to and including the royal arch. "His record as a Mason is without spot or blemish."

In 1853 he professed faith in Christ and joined the Methodist Episcopal church, south, of which he remained a member till his death. In 1855 he was a member of the Georgia legislature. When the late war came on he raised a company, and in the spring of 1862, when his company and others were consolidated into regiments, he was elected Colonel of the Fortieth Georgia regiment. With this rank he went through the war. At the close of the war he opened a law office in Cartersville and went to work to rebuild his broken fortune. In 1877 he was a member of Georgia's last constitutional convention. He was a trustee of the university of Georgia and of the Wesleyan [illegible]ollege at Macon. He resigned the [illegible] in 1880. He died at [illegible]tersville, Ga., with his [illegible] 1881.

[illegible] men,
Upon [illegible]
In His right ha[illegible]
That opes the portals [illegible]

In the record of those [illegible] the good old commonwealth o[illegible] high position she justly holds, a perma[illegible] place is due to the name of Colonel Johnson. He was born beneath her sunny skies, gave the service of a lifetime to the advancement of her interests, and now sleeps his last sleep beneath the green sward of her fair mountain region. To intellectual powers of great native strength, he added the discipline and acquisitions of a liberal education; while to the qualities of a brave, generous nature were given the graces of an unobtrusive Christian profession. Steady of purpose, unflagging in industry, energetic in action, loving the right and hating the wrong, he was fitted for and filled a career of large usefulness.

In person he was somewhat above the medium height, with deep chest and full, round form, after the model of the "blue eyed Saxon;" stood erect, without the slightest touch of stiffness; and with a clear, honest eye looked his fellow-man full in the face. His countenance was open, and a quick revealer of the soul—its indignation against wrong, playful humor, kindness, decision, repose. His voice was clear, with a touch of the feminine. I remember to this day how it rang on one of the bloody fields about Atlanta as he gave the command to charge. In manners, he was a polished gentleman.

He was not a politician. So far as I know, he received office from the hands of his constituents only twice during his life; the first time as a member of the state legislature, and the second as a member of Georgia's last constitutional convention. Since the war a friend urged him to become a candidate for congress, and proposed to pay the expenses of his campaign if he would do so; but he answered that his home afforded him more pleasure than any office the people could bestow.

As a lawyer, he rose steadily and surely, save the period of his service as a colonel in the army of the Confederate States. He "was distinguished for the accuracy of his legal information. His judgment was almost infallible. He dealt in the principles of the law, and did not burden himself or the court with a mass of authorities. He analyzed his case, seized the strong points, stated his position, and took it for granted that the court knew the law." With a mind "eminently analytical," "he sought for the reason of the law," and based the claims of his client on the grand doctrines of right that constitute the foundations of jurisprudence. To this fact, doubtless, is largely due his power and success. At his death he was a practitioner in the state and federal courts, and stood among the foremost lawyers of north Georgia. A business almost, if not quite, as large as that which he received was declined, because he did not have time to give it proper attention. In his practice he often defended the penniless, when rich fees called for his services against them—a virtue which still lives in the hearts and lives of true lawyers, and reflects the highest honor on the profession. His generous heart delighted in service to the defenceless poor—to use his own words, "They are my people and I must help them"—and the hardy mountaineers of north Georgia will long remember him as their faithful, successful counsellor and friend.

In the controversies which led to the late war Colonel Johnson was not a secessionist. Still, when war came he cast his lot with his state and section. He loved our sunny southland, he loved his proud state, and during those dark years of blood, of suffering, of sorrow, of death, he stood forth with the truest and the noblest in their defense. His command went first to the mountains of East Tennessee; then through the Kentucky campaign; then to Vicksburg, where it remained through the siege; then, after being exchanged, through the operations from Chattanooga to Atlanta; then to Nashville with General Hood, and then to North Carolina, where, in 1865 it was surrendered by General J. E. Johnston. At Chickasaw bayou, Baker's creek, in the siege of Vicksburg, at Missionary Ridge, Resaca, New Hope church, in the battles around Atlanta, at Nashville, at Bentonville, besides other smaller engagements and skirmishes, Colonel Johnson showed himself the cool, brave soldier in the shock of battle. No survivor of the old command will forget the battle-flag of the regiment that floated above its [illegible]ring the siege of Vicksburg, [illegible] torn by minie-ball and [illegible]tood there fearlessly, saucily, like a thing of life, telling from every one of its voiceless wounds that brave hands had borne it, and that brave hearts upheld it still. Proud little banner—flag of the south and her sons—the fairest mother and bravest sons that ever the sun shone on! Our gallant colonel never faltered in his devotion to that flag—watched and followed it as it spread its folds before the dark background of our southern skies, and stood beneath its stars and bars where the work of death was quickest and hottest. When his regiment entered the battle of Baker's creek, just before the siege of Vicksburg, it had seven hundred and fifty guns. When it surrendered in North Carolina its ten companies had been consolidated into one, numbering, if I remember correctly, less than seventy-five. This sad, eloquent fact, tells better than words the character of its service. On the fresh earth, beneath which its leader sleeps, we lay the tribute of our love, and say of him, as of each of them:

"Light be the turf that rests upon his breast,
Green be the grass that grows over his grave,
Fadeless be the laurels that flourish 'round his tomb!"

For twenty-eight years Colonel Johnson was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, and died in its communion. He did not seek to appear religious, "to be seen of men;" was so undemonstrative that, by some, his character was misinterpreted. Yet in his life there were deeds, not known to the many and never published by himself, more precious than apples of gold, bespeaking for him a heart touched by the spirit of God, and mellowed by the influences of Heavenly grace. It is a very unusual fact that one-half of an income is given to objects of Christian benevolence, and yet this was true in his case. Often the first intimation which even his family would receive of his kindness to others would be a note to his wife returning thanks for aid. I myself know one who was aided by him for years, and yet I never, during my association with him, heard a word or saw an act that even seemed to hint that he was giving anything. This fact well illustrates his character in this regard.

From lives like this old Georgia's grandeur springs and lives like this will make Methodism a power for the elevation of man and the glory of God till the end of time. Of his enemies he spoke no evil, and often, when misfortune overtook them, was among the first to go to their assistance. In the worship of his home he took special delight in the service of praise, and like the great and good Guthrie, of Scotland, would ask the members of his home circle to sing for him a "bairn's hymn." Death was not a stranger to his thoughts, and often in the bosom of his family, he said he did not fear to die.

His friends were ardently attached to him, as he was to them. At a critical period during his illness last January, an old man walked forty miles to see him once more. If ties outside his home could be so strong, how beautiful and tender was the affection that bound his family together! He was a husband in the primitive sense of that good old word—husband, house band.

"The name of husband, what is it to say?
Of wife and of household the band and the stay."

His family numbered seven—himself, wife and five children—seven, the symbol of perfection. While the bereaved walk in the shadow of this great affliction, may the mystic number be to them the symbol of a perfection that awaits the family, not on these shores of transient, mortal joys, but in the blessed "realms of life and light eternal." God be with them, to give them strength and comfort.

After a painful and serious illness in the early part of the present year, his family and friends were looking hopefully forward to his complete restoration to health. But suddenly the "silver chord was loosed," and the busy hands grew still.

"Rest, weary head,
Lie down to slumber in the peaceful tomb;
Light from above has broken through its gloom;
Here, in the place where once the Savior lay,
Where He shall wake thee on a future day;
Like a tired child upon its mother's breast,
Rest, sweetly rest.

Rest, spirit free!
In the green pastures of the heavenly shore,
Where sin and sorrow can approach no more;
With all the flock of Christ the Shepherd fed,
Beside the streams of life eternal led,
Forever with thy God and Savior blest,
Rest, sweetly rest!"

Another Russian Plot.

COPENHAGEN, August 6.—A St. Petersburg correspondent of the National Gazette says the Russian court made the recent journey to Moscow because of the discovery of an extensive conspiracy to assassinate the imperial family during the night at Peterhoff. The police on the 27th of July stopped a boat which had succeeded in passing the guardships, and arrested the occupants. It was subsequently discovered that sixty persons, some of them of high rank, were involved in the plot.

A Healthy State.

People are constantly changing their homes from east to west and from north to south or vice versa, in search of a healthy state. If they would learn to be contented, and to use the celebrated Kidney-Wort when sick, they would be much better off. The whole system can be kept in a healthy state by this simple but effectual remedy. See larger adv.

Summer Complaints.

At this season, various diseases of the bowels are prevalent, and many lives are lost through lack of knowledge of a safe and sure remedy. PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER is a sure cure for Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Summer Complaint, Cholera, Cholera Morbus, etc., and is perfectly safe.

Read the following:

BAINBRIDGE, N. Y., March 22, 1881.
PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER never fails to afford instant relief for cramp and pain in the stomach.
JOSEPH BURDITT.

NICHOLVILLE, N. Y., Feb. 2, 1881.
The very best medicine I know of for dysentery, cholera morbus, and cramps in the stomach. Have used it for years, and it is sure cure every time.
JULIUS W. DEE.

MOINGONA, IOWA, March 12, 1881.
I have used your PAIN KILLER in severe cases of cramp, colic and cholera morbus, and it gave almost instant relief.
L. E. CALDWELL.

CARNESVILLE, GA., Feb. 28, 1881.
For twenty years I have used your PAIN KILLER in my family. Have used it many times for bowel complaints, and it always cures. Would not feel safe without a bottle in the house.
J. B. IVIE.

SACO, ME., Jan. 22, 1881.
Have used PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER for twelve years. It is safe, sure, and reliable. No mother should allow it to be out of the family.
H. I. NAYES.

ONEIDA, N. Y., Feb. 19, 1881.
We began using it over thirty years ago, and it always gives immediate relief. Would hardly dare to go to bed without a bottle in the house.
W. O. SPERRY.

CONWAYBORO, S. C., Feb. 22, 1881.
Nearly every family in this section keeps a bottle in the house.
DR. E. MORTON.

U. S. CONSULATE, CREFELD, RHENISH PRUSSIA, Feb. 8, 1881.
I have known PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER almost from the day it was introduced, and after years of observation and use I regard its presence in my household as an indispensable necessity.
I. S. POTTER, U. S. Consul.

BURTON-ON-TRENT, ENG.
I had been several days suffering severely from diarrhœa, accompanied with intense pain, when I tried your PAIN KILLER, and found almost instant relief.
H. J. NOONE.

21 MONTAGUE ST., LONDON, ENG.
During a residence of twenty-three years in India, I have given it in many cases of diarrhœa, dysentery, and cholera, and never knew it to fail to give relief.
R. CLARIDGE.

No family can safely be without this invaluable remedy. Its price brings it within the reach of all. For sale by all druggists at 25c. 50c. and $1.00 a bottle.

THE COTTON MARKET.

CONSTITUTION OFFICE,
Atlanta, August 6 1881

New York—Futures opened quiet and steady at lower prices, but throughout the day no material change was effected in quotations. A dull feeling prevailed during the afternoon, but the market showed no disposition to decline. On the contrary, however, we note a slight upward inclination and the closing figures were only a shade under opening quotations. The spot market opened quiet and steady and closed dull; middling 12 1-16c.

Net receipts to-day amount to 1,783 bales, against 1,525 bales last year; exports none; last year 3,196 bales; stock 210,921 bales; last year 17[illegible],001 bales.

Below we give the opening and closing quotations of cotton futures in New York to-day:

A RARE CHANCE FOR A

Safe and Profitable Investment

WISHING TO CHANGE THE INVESTMENT, I offer for sale my Residence and lot containing nearly 2 acres, situated in the center of the business part of Rome, in the rear of the new opera house square, fronting on Oostanaula street 345 feet and running down to low water mark on the Oostanaula river, and extending along its bank 231 feet, same width and depth, about ¾ of it above the usual overflow, and a good part of it 2 ft to 2½ ft above the recent flood. On it are 2 good 2-story wooden dwelling houses and 8 rooms respectively, and 9 one-story tenement houses, all easy to rent. At the foot of Oostanaula street, on the Oostanaula river, and along the bank is the only place in Rome or its vicinity on either river where a wharf and landing can conveniently be made where a steamboat can come and discharge and load her cargo at any stage of the river, and besides here is a ledge of rock cropping out that the wharf can be keyed to and also a breakwater be made if need be. The whole is well adapted to a cotton factory or a warehouse, which can be erected without interfering with the dwelling houses already constructed. Titles perfect, and an excellent chance for an investment for minors. For further particulars apply to this office or to W. H. WEBB, Rome, Floyd Co., Ga.

SIXTY THOUSAND BEDSTEADS.

One of Atlanta's Mammoth Establishments.

Few people in Atlanta recognize the enormous extent of the business done by some of our leading enterprises. If the average citizen were passing Forsyth street crossing, and the building once occupied as the Kennesaw mills' flour depot was pointed out as a place where forty thousand bedsteads are stored, he would be astonished, to put it mildly. But if his attention was directed to a three story building diagonally across the street and he was told that within the two buildings over sixty thousand bedsteads are stored, he would, in the parlance of the gamin, be "paralyzed." Yet such is true. A single firm, that of Ristine & May, now have stored in their warerooms in this city over sixty thousand bedsteads. A walk through their establishment cannot fail to make a true Atlantian proud that such an extensive establishment is located here, and yet this is simply the distributing point of the firm. The factory is located at Loudon, Tennessee, and there all these countless bedsteads are manufactured. The factory embraces three buildings—one 50x200, another 40x175 and another 30x85. 150 men are employed at the factory and there are now stored there not less than 25,000 bedsteads. The question naturally comes up, "where are all these bedsteads disposed of?" First they are brought to Atlanta and stored in the warerooms of the firm. These rooms are in the immense buildings mentioned above, and are actually packed from floor to ceiling with bedsteads. The bedsteads are taken down and packed in tiers, filling the rooms so completely that scarcely enough room is left to allow the necessary passing. An idea of the situation can only be guessed at when it is stated that within the two buildings over sixty thousand bedsteads and twenty-five thousand chairs are stored. These pieces of furniture are sold over the whole country, principally in Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Tennessee. Twelve salesmen are kept on the road and twenty-five men are kept in Atlanta to handle the bedsteads. Last year the firm sold 75 000 bedsteads and the number for this year will run to 125 000. These figures are startling, but they are correct, and show what enterprise, square dealing and experience can do. The bedsteads are made from good seasoned material and vary in price from the cheap article of $1 75 to a handsome bedstead which costs $10,50. None of these are retailed by the firm. The business of the firm has increased so rapidly that the establishment of a branch house is rendered necessary. This will be opened on the first of September in Montgomery, Alabama, on Commerce street, next to Hobbie & Vandivere. The house will be under the management of Mr. S. B. Kennedy, a junior member of the firm, who is known to be a business man of experience and integrity, and the success of the firm in Montgomery should be compared favorably with what it has become in Atlanta. Atlanta is proud of the proportions of the business of Ristine & May, and we commend the firm to the good people of Montgomery and Alabama as one worthy of the fullest confidence.

THE CAR SHED.

Glimpses Among the Passers In and Out.

From the time the Air-Line fast mail came in yesterday morning until the Western and Atlantic accommodation went out yesterday evening the car shed was full of busy moving people bent upon reaching some destination, and about one when the greater number of trains arrive and depart the crowd was simply immense. Many of Atlanta's people were among those who patronized the railroads and the springs near the city will be crowded to-day.

Whilst loafing about this great center of travel THE CONSTITUTION reporters learned—

That H N Snyder, of the Star and Crescent route, went out via the Kennesaw for Washington city. He will attend the passenger agents' convention in that place.

That James Creed started for Memphis and Nashville.

That Mrs Robert Lowry returned from Gainesville and resumed her home at the Markham.

That Mr. Wm. Markham and lady came back from Gainesville where there have been spending the summer. They are much improved in health.

That H. W. Sellers left for Philadelphia via the fast mail.

That Mr. L. P. Grant and lady are at Bedford Alum springs, Virginia,

That Mrs. L. W. Landerham, of Savannah, returned home yesterday after a pleasant sojourn in Atlanta

That H W Collier and lady, of Columbus, came up on the West Point road and left for New York, via the Air Line.

That M C Gordon, of Columbus, left for Lynchburg, Va.

That Conductor Reneau brought in a train full of persons going to springs.

That the Georgia road is having a heavy passenger travel. All of their trains come in and go out full.

That the Atlanta & West Point road has some beautiful passenger coaches.

That Tom McCandless, passenger agent for the New Orleans short line, sent a large party of emigrants to Texas.

That H. R Bear, of Florida, purchased a ticket for Weyer's cave, Va

That Judge M J. Crawford and lady left for Virginia springs

That General Henry R Jackson went out on the Piedmont Air-Line with a through ticket to New York.

That R. C. Johnson went up to Mt. Airy for a few days.

That Judge T G Holt and family leave for the mountains of Georgia this morning

That Major Wheatley and family, of Americus, passed through town en route to Tallulah falls.

That R Pollard and Miss Pollard, of Savannah, arrived on the Central and left on the Air Line for Gainesville.

That W R Hammond went up to White Sulphur.

That R L Barry will dine at the White Sulphur to-day.

That Hon. Henry Hillyer and family went up to New Holland.

That Henry Davis, clerk of the market, Savannah, went through to Mt. Airy.

That Mr. Hoke Smith is at the White Sulpher to-day.

That J C Shaw, general traveling agent of the Central railroad, is in town.

That J S Pemberton and lady left for Gainesville

That General Robert Toombs went up to Mount Airy.

That F C Foster and Miss Foster boarded the train with tickets to White Sulphur.

Mr J H Ketner will spend the day in Gainesville.

That H C Glenn was among the passengers for White Sulphur springs.

That A S Dyer will circulate in Gainesville to-day.

That Clifford Anderson, attorney general, wife and children went up to Tallulah Falls.

That John, the boy who attends the gentleman's waiting room, has greatly improved the same, and is polite and attentive to the traveling public

That W. H. Stockton went up to Gainesville.

That C. M. Cady started to New York.

That S Hall left for Gainesville yesterday.

That J S Groves left for Tallulah falls.

That W Rawson left for Gainesville.

That Mrs. A. H Cox, of Lagrange, came up yesterday, and during her stay in Atlanta, will be the guest of Mrs. A. J. Orme, on Peachtree.

That Mrs. Mound, of Greenesboro, Georgia, passed through town en route to Old Point Comfort.

That J. P. Manly, one of the leading citizens of Columbus, is in ... a view to locating.

That Mrs Wil... will leave Atlanta next Wednesday for an extensive tour through Canada and the northwest. She will be absent some months and will take in the lakes before she returns.

That H. Hill, one of the popular conductors of the Georgia railroad, brought in a large crowd of passengers en route to the springs.

That L. B Bowers, L. Burrus and L Rooney passed through the city to day en route to the east.

That Charles Benton and lady, of Macon passed through town on their return from Saratoga.

That A H Cox, of Lagrange, returned home.

That Miss Hillyer, of Decatur, returned from Mississippi.

That Jim McCool, the Air-Line's popular conductor, took a big partty out to the springs.

The Cole Charter.

It is generally understood that there will be little or no opposition to the Cincinnati and Georgia railroad It will pass the house with little or no appreciable opposition, and go booming to the completion of success in the senate.

The eighth annual session of the Georgia State Sunday-School association will be held at Griffin, Georgia, Wednesday and Thursday, August 24th and 25th, 1881.

The basis of representation is one delegate for every three hundred members of Sunday schools composing the county association and in counties where no association exists two delegates for every representative to which the county is entitled in the general assembly of the state.

It is earnestly desired that every county in the state be represented by at least one or two delegates Fulton and the adjoining counties will be largely represented.

The good people of Griffin will complete every arrangement for the entertainment of delegates The session promises to be very interesting and profitable to the great cause in which we all have such an abiding interest, and we earnestly request our brethren of the press throughout the state to call the attention of the Sunday school workers to this Griffin convention.

Senator Hill.

Letters from Senator Hill announce his safe arrival at Rockbridge Alum springs, where he will be for some weeks with Mrs Hill. He continues to improve and is remarkably cheerful. His physicians and he are confident that his tongue is entirely cured. We hope to see him in Atlanta again soon and perfectly well. The Washington Post says:

Senator Benjamin H. Hill, of Georgia, was seen late last evening by a Post reporter at the Baltimore and Potomac railroad depot, where he was waiting the train to carry him to the Alum springs, Virginia, to join his wife and family. Mr. Hill, though in fair health, looks wan and thin from the recent operation to remove a growth on his tongue. He spoke without apparent difficulty and in a perfectly clear voice. "I am just out of hospital to-day," said he, "but excepting that I can't smoke and feel somewhat pulled down, I am all right."

"What was the cause of the trouble?" queried the reporter.

"An abrasion of the tongue five years since by a broken tooth, and smoking while the sore was there"

"Is there any truth in the story that you first consulted a cancer quack?"

"None whatever. I went to an old and reputable homeopathic physician in Philadelphia, but I don't want you to say anything about him, as he did his best."

"Do you suffer any inconvenience now from the sore?"

"No; and Dr. Gross thinks there will be no further trouble."

The many personal and political friends of the senator will be glad to know that he will take his place next winter in the senate unimpaired in body, as he alway has been in mind.

Hall Kennesaw Council No. 215, A. L. H.

ATLANTA, GA, July 25th, 1881.

Resolutions unanimously adopted by Kennesaw Council No. 215, American Legion of Honor, in memory of our beloved Companion, Mrs. Sallie B. Rodgers, who departed this life on Monday, July 11th, 1881.

To the Commander and Companions of Kennesaw Council No. 215, A. L. H.:

Your committee to whom was assigned the solemn duty to present to this Council resolutions in memory of our beloved Companion, Mrs. Sallie B. Rodgers, respectfully report as follows:

Whereas, Death has invaded our Council and taken for its first victim our only female Companion; therefore, be it

Resolved 1. This Council, while it submits to this irreparable loss without a murmur, yet is deeply grieved, and cannot adequately express its bereavement through the barren medium of cold words.

2. That in the death of Mrs Rodgers this Council has lost a faithful Companion, society a cherished member, the church an earnest and devoted worker, her children a nourishing and tender mother, and her sorrowing husband the best gift of God to man—a loving wife.

3. That our dearest sympathies are hereby tendered to our stricken Companion, R L Rodgers and his motherless children in this their mightiest grief.

4. That the charter of this Council be suitably draped in crape, and retained so for three months.

5 That a copy of these resolutions be inscribed on a memorial page of the records of this Council, and a copy furnished our bereaved Companion, R L Rodgers, and that the same be published in THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION.

JOHN KEELY.

Bargains! Bargains!

Keely is always giving new life to the dry goods trade of Atlanta! He is always ready with something fresh in the way of "bargains." His list in to-day's issue is comprehensive and astonishing! He cannot be set down nor kept down. His ingenuity in ascertaining what the public is most interested in is something wonderful, and his ability to fly round and get up something to fill the bill, at the same time defying competition, is deserving special notice. Keely's success is largely due to his methods of business. No fancy prices characterize his business. "Rock bottom" prices on everything he keeps is the motto, and politeness to every visitor to his store is the rule. Success to John Keely.

CITY & COUNTRY.

Public Comfort.

From all sources of information it has become evident that we are to have a very large crowd in Atlanta during the Exposition in October, November and December. A number of citizens have come forward and registered their names, giving the number of guests they would entertain; but a great many who can if they will entertain have not done so I would be glad to have every housekeeper who can come in at once and say what they can do. This will give me correct data to act upon There is no other way of solving the problem Please come in at once Mattress manufacturers and furniture dealers should provide large stocks of materials and have them worked up ready for the demand. All these things will be in great demand, and men of energy should be making arrangements for future profits. A word to the wise is sufficient.

Blunders and Mistakes.

A great many people have adopted, as their rule of general conduct, the reasoning of the man who said that he never became a priest because he was afraid he might want at sometime to marry and he never married because he was afraid he might sometime want to become a priest. Thus it is they live to the end of their days in a fruitless effort, without accomplishing anything in particular, because they are always expecting to do something else. They can hardly be called blunderers, yet their lives are eminently great mistakes. It is a blunder for any person to go on making their purchases of things which they require from merchants whose chief stock in trade consists of shoddy articles, for which they ask vastly more than their real values, when it is known that there are other merchants in the same neighborhood who sell a better class of goods at a much fairer price—a class of goods which are not worn out with age by having remained on the shelves of some bankrupt concern. It is simply a mistake, when buyers, acting ignorantly as to the true state of facts, allow themselves to be thus imposed upon, which is rectified as soon as they have obtained the proper information, and act thereon.

No one will ever be guilty of committing a blunder if they visit the establishment of W. H. Brotherton, on the corner of Whitehall and Mitchell streets, for the purpose of laying in a supply of such articles as he keeps, for here is found the biggest line, the most fashionable line and the best line of dress goods, suitings, etc., that are found in any dry goods establishment in the south. It is a mistake to suppose that shoddy articles will be put on you at a price which is more than they are worth, for such articles find no place in this emporium. Purchasers who desire this class of goods, and are willing to pay big prices for them must go elsewhere.

It is true he has a department where articles are sold fearfully below their real value, but they are not "shoddy" nor from bankrupt sales, nor from old, wornout stocks; they are found on his five, ten, fifteen, twenty, twenty-five and fifty cents counters, and they consist of articles useful as well as ornamental that are needed in every household; articles used for culinary purposes—glassware, tinware, Japanese bread-trays, waiters and a thousand other things too numerous to mention. Table linens and table ware, which retail elsewhere for double the price at which he sells them Then, too, there are the toys and playthings for the children, marbles, hammers, hatchets and many other things. Hair ornaments, bracelets and cheap jewelry, cuff buttons and shirt studs, an array the like of which was never before seen, and cannot be purchased at such figures else where.

The clothing department, men and children's suits, are found great attractions, and a genuine reduction in spring and summer clothing. There is an immense stock in this line of men, boys and youths' clothing. Very desirable goods that must be sold cheap. An examination will convince the most skeptical that they can get bargains

Of the dress goods department there are marvelous things to be said Plain all-wool buntings (black) at 15 cents a yard; brocade lace buntings, fancy brocades, crepe cloths, black cashmeres, from 25 cents up; plain and striped summer silks at 50 cents per yard; black satins at the same price, and colored satins for a dollar that are dirt cheap; Victoria and bishop lawns, colored lawns, check nainsook, from 10 cents to 50 cents, in every variety and style remarkably low.

There can be no question that in the lace department can be found the biggest line short of New York city. Kid, lisle thread gloves, hosiery, ties and ribbons in the greatest abundance, and of every style and description, and the most complete and perfect assortment in the city.

Brotherton is at the head and front of the retail trade in his line—he has the finest place and the largest stock of goods and sells more of them than any competitor. He is constantly adding novelties to his stock, and keeps up to the fullest requirement of all that his customers may possibly need, both in style and fancy goods If our readers in the search of any article which is likely to be found in a dry goods emporium, fail to make the examination of his stock at the corner of Whitehall and Mitchell street, they will certainly make both a blunder and a mistake which will cause them to have many regrets in the future when they have discovered their lost opportunity. And we shall be truly sorry for the poor unfortunates who, in their rashness, knowing better, fail to do better by neglecting the chance now offered them, if ever regrets come to them it will not be a passing emotion, but it will be a question which can be represented to them by the dollars and cents which they will lose.

Executor's Sale.

State of Georgia, Cherokee county.

BY VIRTUE OF THE POWER AND AUthority of the last will and testament of Nancy V Lattimer, late of said county, deceased, I will sell to the highest bidder, before the court house door in Canton, in said county, on the first Tuesday in September next, between the legal hours of sale, the lands and assets belonging to said estate, lying on the public road leading from Canton to Jasper; the Marietta and North Georgia railroad running through said land; lying in the third district and second section, lots and parts of lots Nos. 148, 149, 212 213, 216 217, 218, 219, 220, 221, 222, 223, 281, 282, 283, 284 285, 286, 287, 280, 289, 290 291, 292, 293, 294, 295, 296 297, 354, 355, 356, 357, 358, 359, 360, 361, 362, 363, 364, 365, 366, 367, 427, 428, 429, 430, 431, 432, 433, 434, 43, 438, 439, 498, 499. Also 30 acres, more or less, including the Holt Shoal on the Etowah river, and a shoal on a large branch—number not known, but will be made known on the day of sale. I will sell those shoals separate. The plantation lies on the Etowah river and Sharp Mountain creek, containing some of the best land on the river. The plantation will be sold in three tracts or parcels. All on the south side of the river in one parcel, with a reserve for the person buying the mill to join a dam to the south bank of the river. All on the north side of the river and east of Sharp Mountain creek in one parcel, and all on north side of river and west of creek, including the mills in another parcel.

This is one of the best plantations in Cherokee county, five or six hundred acres cleared and in cultivation. The railroad runs in less than a half mile of the mill. There is a good mill house with two sets of runners, with all the equipments for grinding wheat and corn, and a saw mill The mill is not running at this time, the dam being broken. The water power cannot be excelled anywhere The whole farm contains two thousand acres, more or less. Any person wanting a good farm and water power would do well to examine said property. It is well timbered, well watered, and is as healthy a place as there is in the State.

There is not another place within the state with as many advantages combined. There is a good orchard and comfortable houses on the place.

Any one wishing to examine said property will call on the undersigned, who lives two miles south of said place, who will take pleasure in showing said lands, and giving any information wanted.

Sold for the benefit of the heirs and creditors. Terms of sale one half cash down, the other half twelve month's time, with seven per cent interest per annum. Bond for titles until the last purchase money is paid.
